INQUIRY INTO R.C.M.P. ACTS IN MARITIMES

B.C. Retailers Ask New Laws To Protect Business

4,145 Petitions For Legislation Against Unfair Trade Practices Presented to Government By Large Delegation From All B.C. Centres

Appeal to Save Small Merchant

Retail merchants to-day told the British Columbia Government what they wanted.

Among the things they seek are protection against mail order house competition, against manufacturers selling direct to the consumer and against certain trade practices, such as "loss leaders." Such protection, they said, was vital if the retail merchant was not to be "driven out of existence."

The merchants set out their case before Premier Pattullo and the members of his cabinet. The presentation was made by President J. B. Watson and Secretary George R. Matthews of the B.C. Board of the Retail Merchants Association at the head of a delegation of sixty leaders of the organization who assembled at the Parliament Buildings from every part of the province.

This afternoon the sixty who were here this morning were joined by more than 200 others who came from Vancouver to take part in the big dinner demonstration at the Empress Hotel to-night. The Premier and members of the Legislature will be entertained by the retail men.

The delegation brought with it into the executive chamber at the Parliament Buildings piles of petitions, totalling 4,145, signed by retailers in every part of the province. They said more petitions were still pouring in and the number was expected to reach 5,000.

Backing up the appeal of the retail men to the government, there appeared Mrs. Fred Rolston of Vancouver, president of the Local Council of Women; Rev. Albert Paul of Vancouver representing the clergy and moral reform forces, and A. J.

What Merchants Ask in Petition

The petition signed by 4,145 retail merchants of British Columbia presented to Premier Pattullo and members of the government by the large Retail Merchants' Association of Canada to-day, sets out the following:

"Whereas mail order houses are enjoying in cities, towns, villages and communities throughout this province, a business equal to and more than that of the largest retail store in such places without the necessity of paying locally any rent, taxes or licence, or contributing in any way to the welfare of such places, and are steadily draining large sums of money away from these places, and are thereby destroying community life, which is the foundation of our whole prosperity in this province, and are thereby adding to the distress of this province, and are rendering it impossible for the local merchant to give the service demanded of him;

"And whereas the business of retailing is essential in our economic structure, but is being seriously undermined by the practice of manufacturers and wholesalers selling direct to the consumer;

"And whereas widespread harm has come to the retail business through the iniquitous practice of many stores putting on sales of 'loss leaders,' which practice we consider to be unethical, unsound economically, deceptive, and ultimately harmful both to the public and to the merchant;

"And whereas the above situations are urgent and have for much time past received widespread public attention and do not permit of delay;

"We, therefore, petition as follows:

"1. That at the present session there be enacted provincial legislation to provide as follows:

Minister States New Health Plans To Legislature

Widening of Preventive Services Big Object in Scheme of Co-ordination and Improvement Throughout Department, Hon. G. M. Weir Explains

Hon. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, in the Legislature yesterday announced his plan for a reorganization of the provincial public health services to be carried out in the coming year.

Involving all sides of the health problem, Dr. Weir's plan is summarized as follows:

(1) Establishment of a new field service with a supervisor and five additional trained social workers in addition to ten now employed, to serve all branches with respect to investigations, case work, deportations, repatriations and so forth.

(2) Establishment of a collections office in Vancouver which is expected to collect more than $50,000 additional revenue in making those who are able pay for care in mental hospitals, T.B. hospitals and other institutions.

(3) Increase in maximum scale of mothers' pension allowances from $5 to $7.50 a month for each child, with new administrative methods and new regulations to remove grievances.

(4) Advancement in child welfare through the field service, coupled with a new Adoptions Act.

GIVE VIEWS ON CLOCK CHANGE

Letters Show Difference of Opinion on Daylight Saving Before Council

Views on daylight saving time, suggested for Victoria by Alderman Archie Wills and carried in its first test in the City Council Monday evening, were revealed to some extent in the following letters received by the mayor and council following the broaching of the project:

STEAMSHIP VIEWS

"Dear Mr. Mayor:—

"In reference to proposed change of our time to daylight saving, we wish to make the following comments to show as a whole the advancing of an hour will not be beneficial to Victoria.

"If it is to be general on the Coast, there is no doubt of its benefits, but if Victoria is alone we will be losers in many ways.

"The inconvenience to tourists will be great, as our stores will be closing at 5 p.m. instead of 6 p.m. much business will be lost. All transportation companies will of course be retaining standard time, which will often cause confusion as to departures and arrivals.

"As the tourist business is one of the main assets of Victoria, every consideration should be given and

Commission Chosen To Investigate Charges Made In Commons By Veniot

Minister of Justice Says Chief Justice of New Brunswick Will Head Board; Liberal M.P. Says Third Degree Used

DECLARES FOOD WAS DESTROYED

Canadian Press

Ottawa, March 13.—A royal commission, headed by the Chief Justice of New Brunswick, will investigate charges made by Hon. Peter Veniot, Liberal M.P. for Gloucester, N.B., and former Postmaster-General, against the Royal Canadian Mounted Police. The announcement was made in the House of Commons this afternoon by Hon. Hugh Guthrie, Minister of Justice.

The former Postmaster-General recently charged the Mounties used third degree methods against witnesses in New Brunswick and destroyed food from a seized rum vessel illegally and within the presence of men and women on relief.

The Justice Minister said the Royal Commission would convene immediately and Mr. Veniot said he was prepared to put his seat at stake if he did not prove his charges.

The chief justice of New Brunswick is Hon. J. B. M. Baxter, head of the Court of Appeal and former Premier of the province.

In the Commons yesterday evening Mr. Veniot charged Royal Canadian Mounted Police had set fire to food confiscated from a rum vessel at Shippegan, N.B., in the presence of 150 people who were on relief. The vessel, he said, was the Paul T.

CHILDREN AND LIQUOR

The New Brunswick member claimed the $20,000 liquor cargo from the boat was destroyed on a dump at Bathurst, N.B., but the Mounties set no guard afterwards. "School children visited the dump and we had

FALL CLAUSE IS CANCELLED

British Board of Trade Stated to Have Told Importers Contract With Russia Must Omit That Price Arrangement

London, March 13.—Protests of the Canadian Government at the contract providing for importation of 400,000 standards of Russian timber into Britain this season apparently had taken effect to-day.

The Board of Trade, which has to pass on all contracts involving imports, disapproved of the fall clause in the timber agreement, according to The London Morning Post. The Dominion had protested that this clause, permitting reduction in the contract price of the Russian timber at any time to meet a fall on foreign timber prices, was in violation of the Ottawa agreements.

The Morning Post said Timber Distributors Limited had telegraphed to all its members saying the governmen had informed Russian authorities of its opposition to the clause, and in consequence of this the agreement may be ineffective.

Ottawa, March 13.—Members of the Dominion Government and members of the House of Commons in general were pleased to learn the British Board of Trade had ordered removal of the "fall clause" from contracts entered into by Timber Distributors Limited and Soviet lumber exporters.

Rumors that a contract was being negotiated containing the clause, which would enable Russian exporters to meet any fall in the world prices, were brought up in the House a few weeks ago. Prime Minister R. B. Bennett announced the government was making representations to the British government against inclusion of the clause, as was successfully done the year before.

In the Canada-United Kingdom trade agreement negotiated in Ottawa in 1932 there was a provision that any contracts that might be made between British importer and the Soviet Union (or any other country) that prejudicially affected the preferences granted Canada, would be remedied. It was on that understanding the protests were made.

GREEKS MAY EXECUTE MANY

Wholesale Courtmartial Hearings Follow Uprising in That Country

Associated Press

Athens, March 13.—The possibility of death before a firing squad faced more than 200 Greek rebels to-day as the government instituted wholesale courtmartial proceedings for those implicated in the eleven-day revolt.

The belief that a mass execution would mark the final chapter of the uprising was widely held in Athens, where it was recalled that a similar fate befell the leaders of Greece's last revolution.

Premier Panayoti Tsaldaris gave cheering crowds before his home a hint of the stern measures the government might invoke to climax its triumph.

"The people of Greece," he said, "may be certain the law will be executed in such a way the present generation will never again witness the spectacle of these last days."

While Athens continued its celebrations, the government set its losses in the insurrection as eleven killed and twenty-eight wounded.

TALK OF MONARCHY

The capital buzzed with the talk of the possibility of a monarchist restoration. Crowds cheered and thundered "Zito"—Grecian exclamation of acclaim—when pictures of the late King Constantine appeared on the streets and were circulated from hand to hand.

Street scenes were reminiscent of New York's New Year's Eve on Broadway. Crowds, singing and shouting, paraded through the streets bearing effigies of the white-bearded Venizelos dangling from the scaffolds.

The government continued to round up officials suspected of complicity in the revolutionary conspiracy.

McGeer's Interest Suspension Fight Delayed To Friday

Provincial Grant of $800,000 Would Eliminate Need For Suspension of Interest By Vancouver, Mayor Tells Committee; Pooley's Suggestion

"If the provincial government will give Vancouver the same kind of treatment as the province received from the national government, then we will be able to get by without default," Mayor G. G. McGeer, K.C., told the private bills committee of the Legislature this morning.

Mayor McGeer was speaking to a proposal that Vancouver be given power to suspend for two years the payment of more than 3 per cent interest on its bonds.

If the province would give the city a $800,000 grant as proposed in the report of Thomas Bradshaw there would be no need to cut the interest.

He pointed out the city was not asking power to make a final repudiation of its obligation, but merely a suspension which would enable it to get straight within two years.

"The whole thing is, Vancouver need not default on its entire debt. But we want to meet the situation before this would become necessary. By taking this power now we can avoid a more serious position," he said.

R. H. Pooley, M.P.P., Esquimalt, suggested Mr. McGeer approach the government to pay the excess interest above 3 per cent and get by that way for one year. Then there would be no question about the city's credit in future borrowings.

"I'd be delighted, if they did that," said the mayor.

"Fought what to raise money later on, and it would be best to keep yourself in the clear," said Mr. Pooley.

"Oh, by that time we'll have a nationally-owned central bank to

Man Is Held As Death Investigated

Canadian Press

Pembroke, Ont., March 13.—Leslie Scheunaman of Alice Township was held by provincial police to-day in connection with the death of Herbert Berger. The charred body of Berger, thirty-five, was found yesterday beside the ruins of his burned farmhouse, near Wolte Station, fifteen miles from Pembroke.

FALSE ALARM IN BANK OF CANADA

Toronto, March 13 (Canadian Press).—The burglar alarm in the new Bank of Canada office here rang this afternoon, and city police and private protection officers swarmed to the building. K. Frederickson, manager, said someone of the staff had inadvertently pressed an alarm button, and the reinforcements dispersed.

City Is Advised To Mark Time Now

Mayor Leeming Reports on Interview With Thomas Bradshaw, Finance Expert; City Management Lauded By Visitor

On the assurance of Hon. John Hart, Minister of Finance, that the municipalities' problems would be dealt with in the 1936 provincial budget, Thomas Bradshaw, Toronto financial expert and president of the North American Life Assurance Co. of Canada, has advised Victoria to mark time until that budget is brought down, Mayor David Leeming said to-day in a statement on his meeting with Mr. Bradshaw.

"Mr. Bradshaw recommends us to carry on our programme on the same basis as last year and to put behind us those things we cannot handle," the mayor stated.

He spoke of Mr. Bradshaw's interview with the provincial finance minister, adding "Mr. Bradshaw recommends us to mark time until the 1936 budget."

Among the Toronto expert's recommendations to the city, the mayor revealed, was one to have taxes paid in three equal instalments, due on April 15, another on July 15 and a final one on October 15. Mr. Bradshaw recommended the allowance of discount on the advance payment on either of the two prior dates.

FAVORS PREPAYMENT

Mr. Bradshaw supported the continuance of interest allowance on prepaid taxes as it is carried on at present and suggested the city again seek power to arrange for consolidation of tax arrears.

The suggestions, Mr. Bradshaw admitted, were not solutions to present conditions, but possible aids.

U.S. MAY BAR J. STRACHEY

British Writer and Lecturer on Bond For Immigration Hearing; Communistic Teachings Charged

Associated Press

Washington, March 13.—Labor department officials said to-day that a deportation hearing probably would be held to-morrow in Chicago for John Strachey, British writer and lecturer, who was arrested yesterday evening charged with being an Alien Communist.

The proceedings will be held before the Chicago immigration inspector. His findings will be forwarded to the board of review in Washington. If the board decides Strachey is guilty it will order his deportation, for which no court action is necessary.

GUIDING PRINCIPLE

In moving toward deportation of the member of the famous British family, the government to-day enunciated the principle that any alien who advocated the principles of Communism must be expelled from the country.

While denying the arrest yesterday evening at Glencoe, Ill., a Chicago suburb, of the author of "The Nature of Capitalist Crisis" was the beginning of a concerted drive against radicals, the labor department held court decisions made it mandatory to deport alient Communists or foreigners who advocate Communism.

CONTINUES TOUR

Chicago, March 13.—Free on $500 bond, Evelyn John St. Loe Strachey, British author and former member of Parliament, who was arrested yesterday evening, on a charge of illegal entry, was on his way to Cleveland to-day to continue his lecture tour.

Radio Men Leave Tankers

Associated Press

San Francisco, March 13.—Threats of a general United States Pacific Coast shipping blockade brought increasing tenseness to major ports to-day as various seafaring unions pledged support to striking oil tanker sailors.

The first "sympathetic" walkout was announced at San Pedro by C. H. Jordan, representative of the American Radio Telegraphists' Association, who said wireless operators had been called off the oil tankers.

REFUSE TO WORK

Pledges to refuse to work on any vessel replacing strikers with non-union crews were previously made by the Masters', Mates' and Pilots' Association and the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association here and at San Pedro.

More than twenty vessels, most of them tankers, were reported tied up at Coast ports.

WAGE INQUIRY IS PROMISED

The Department of Labor will make an investigation into compliance of the City of Victoria with minimum wage regulations, Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, said in the House in reply to a question by E. E. Winch, C.C.F., Burnaby.

No complaints have been received regarding this matter, the minister said, and the department is perfectly willing to look into the question of clerical staffs receiving the proper minimum.

PREMIER BENNETT REGAINS STRENGTH

Ottawa, March 13.—Condition of Prime Minister R. B. Bennett was reported to-day as "satisfactory." He was said to be "resting comfortably."

Mr. Bennett has been ill since February 24, when he suffered an acute infection of the respiratory passages. Physicians prescribed two weeks' rest in bed and another fortnight of comparative inactivity for recuperation.

Liberals Rely On Courts To Guard Provinces' Rights

Party's Position Made Plain By Leader King as Unemployment Bill Passed By Commons; Other Bills Supported; Predicted Liberal View Will Prevail

Canadian Press

Ottawa, March 13.—Relying on the courts to prevent any infringement of provincial rights, the Liberal opposition in the House of Commons will support all the reform measures of the Bennett government, such as the eight-hour day bill, the weekly day of rest bill and the minimum wage bill.

Rt. Hon. W. L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, made this declaration in the House yesterday afternoon as the unemployment insurance bill received third reading on a vote of 133 to 3.

Before the division the Liberal leader in his carefully worded statement announced his party would support the measures because it endorsed the principles, although firm in the conviction each of them was beyond the legal competence of Parliament. The Liberals, he said, refused to be jockeyed into opposing social reform legislation to provide the Conservatives with an election issue.

The three members who opposed the insurance bill when it passed on third reading were E. J. Garland,

A great tribute to Dr. H. E. Young, provincial health officer, for his contribution to preventive medicine in Canada was paid by Dr. J. J. Gillis, Liberal, Yale, and by Dr. Weir, who referred to Dr. Young as one of the two men in Canada whose names would go down in history for this work.

"These," said E. E. Winch, Burnaby, referring to the mental homes, "are institutions that every member should go through."

"Nurses are the most exploited class in the community."—E. E. Winch.

Dr. J. J. Gillis, Liberal, Yale, and A. M. Manson, Liberal, Omineca, staged an attack on the accounting system at Tranquille farm, by which other provincial institutions were charged much higher prices than necessary for farm products. An adjustment is under consideration, the minister said.

City Is Advised To Mark Time Now

"In my opinion they are doubtful" Mayor Leeming commented.

"Our present method of prepaying taxes is very effective. We have tried consolidation schemes which are not very strongly supported by our comptroller and treasurer," the mayor said.

BETTER DEAL

At the interview yesterday, the mayor pointed out to Mr. Bradshaw the city to-day was treating property owners whose properties had reverted to the city on a basis equal to or better than the suggested consolidation terms.

"He thinks," the mayor stated, "that it is quite right that the public should be apprised of the truth regarding the finance situation of the city, but, on the other hand, thinks that remarks derogatory to the city should not be made."

Mr. Bradshaw has promised to write to the mayor putting his recommendations in the form of a report, the mayor stated.

COMMENDS CITY

In an interview following the camera session with the mayor and members of his council yesterday, Mr. Bradshaw expressed high commendation of the management of civic affairs in Victoria.

In spite of the difficulty of tax collections, the public services, such as streets, sewers and parks had been given good attention, he noted.

He took an optimistic view on the future of Victoria, which he linked with Vancouver as the tourist centre of the Pacific Northwest.

"In spite of the dark outlook taken by some civic officials I have met, Victoria to-day is far better off than many eastern cities of her size," Mr. Bradshaw stated.

What Merchants Ask In Petition

"(a) A system of taxation on mail order houses operating within the province and on mail order catalogues and mail order sales within the province on such terms as will place such mail order houses in fair and equal competition with other merchants;

"(b) The establishment of all necessary boards and other means for fully and effectually bringing in and enforcing fair trading practices generally;

"(c) The registration and licensing of all retailers in the province at such amount as would provide for the cost of the above board;

"(d) To grant to the government power to make all necessary regulations.

"2. That legislation be passed at this session to enable the government to promptly conform with any legislation which may be passed at the present session of the federal parliament or hereafter, in respect to any of the above matters or the like, and that all steps may be taken to ensure that the necessary provincial machinery may be created and made ready to set in operation."

Strachey was confronted by the possibility of deportation following his arrest on accusations of entering the country by making false statements. He entered the United States after a visit to Canada.

Accused of subsequently describing himself as a Communist, the noted writer-lecturer and son of the late John St. Loe Strachey, publisher of the Conservative London Spectator, appeared to-day to post the $500 bond before Fred J. Schlotfeldt, district director of immigration and naturalization, pending a hearing on the false entry charge.

CALLED ABSURD

"Absurd" was the way Strachey described the charge after he had been arrested by Schlotfeldt and police in suburban Glencoe yesterday evening.

"I am not a member of the Communist Party and therefore I will firmly deny I entered the country through any misstatements," he asserted.

The charge against Strachey was made in a warrant issued in Washington.

SEE INCIDENT

While some observers professed to see the possibility of an "international incident" in the author's arrest, Lewis Bernays, British consul in Chicago, said he would take no action until he had been instructed to do so.

The British author addressed University of Illinois students at Champaign, Ill., Monday evening.

"It is virtually necessary to abolish the system (Capitalism) and substitute another," he said, referring to Communism as the only solution.

Strachey's freedom was obtained on a bond furnished by Prof. Robert Morss Lovett, sixty-five-year-old Liberal editor and teacher.

WILL FIGHT

"The charges against me are absolutely false," Strachey said as he boarded the train after posting the bond at immigration headquarters. "I will fight them to the last ditch."

Strachey, accompanied by two attorneys, visited the office of Schlotfeldt for a secret conference earlier.

finance government credits," replied Mr. McGeer.

BONDHOLDERS' PROTEST

Further discussion on the suggestion was halted when W. deB. Farris, K.C., and F. R. McD. Russell, representing bondholders, said they had not been notified of the proposal and wished time to get instruction.

"I can't quite see this should be necessary," said A. M. Manson, K.C., committee chairman. "Mr. McGeer has announced his scheme from the housetops and his council is supporting him . . ."

"Well, I wouldn't say that," said the mayor.

Alderman W. W. Smith, however, thought the council would not oppose suspension of the interest.

"The council will deal with it soon and I know my council and they will support me with a majority," said Mr. McGeer.

After some further discussion it was decided to stand the question over until Friday to give bondholders' representatives an opportunity to consider it. Mr. McGeer announced his council would discuss it at a special meeting to-morrow.

Other proposals designed to help Vancouver out of its financial difficulties were discussed before the committee.

SAVINGS BANK

One was the operation of a municipal savings bank which would use the credit of the people to finance civic government. No opposition was expressed to this.

The city also seeks the rights to use $640,000 of unexpended by-law balances in current financing.

Mayor McGeer also advanced his plan to issue $1,200,000 of "baby" bonds, that is in small denominations, to finance a new city hall and relief works. The present city hall accommodation, a rented property, was entirely inadequate, he argued. The city could have $60,000 a year in rentals and a further $30,000 by more efficient administration in a new building, he said. The cost would run from $600,000 to $750,000. Remainder of the bond issue would be used in providing material for relief work projects.

Vancouver is also asking power to suspend sinking fund payments and also a declaration that suspension of these payments in the past shall be declared legal to protect any members of the council from suit. No opposition was expressed to these.

A proposal that the Vancouver charter be amended to reduce the size of the council from twelve aldermen to eight and to have them elected at large instead of by wards was discussed and an amendment along this line will be prepared.

Minister States New Health Plans To Legislature

(5) More vigorous prosecution of public health work, health education, venereal disease control, public health nursing, rural health schemes, and removal of the unemployment medical service from the Board of Health.

(6) Relief of overcrowding in mental hospitals by more rigid control of admissions and a more vigorous policy in deportations and repatriations, and by establishing a new institution at New Westminster to be known as the Home for the Aged, which will care for 150 senile patients. The Dominion Government will be asked to pay more for maintenance of 150 wards of the Dominion in mental hospitals.

(7) Extension of preventive work in mental hygiene by appointing Dr. A. L. Crease, general superintendent of Mental Hospitals and Provisional Psychiatrist, and by extending clinical work in Vancouver and Victoria.

(8) Extension of tuberculosis control by establishing a new institution in available buildings at the Boys' Industrial Home at Coquitlam to house 120 beds, which may obviate the need for a new sanatorium on the lower mainland; by providing additional beds at the Alloo Camp near Port Haney for relief patients, and by setting up a new traveling clinic to serve the southern interior. This also involves a general unified system of tuberculosis control. Special legislation will be introduced to deal with this.

(9) The province is also making preparation for the preliminary organization in health insurance and will survey the problem of crippled children.

In outlining his plans, Dr. Weir paid high tribute to Dr. Harry M. Cassidy, the new director of social welfare, who is one of the best qualified sociologists in Canada. The C.C.F., through Ernest Bakewell, MacKenzie, endorsed this tribute.

British Columbia, the minister stated, had been spending too much of its health appropriations on curing disease, and very little on prevention. In a few years the new programme would show a large economic return apart altogether from the humanitarian side.

In addition to the hundreds of persons arrested on suspicion of rebel sympathies there are the 3,000 insurgent troops who surrendered.

The government ordered the luxurious homes of M. Venizelos and Deputy Pistolakis confiscated.

NO EXTRADITION

Rome, March 13.—A government spokesman to-day said Italy would refuse any request of the Greek government for extradition of former Premier Eleutherios Venizelos, leader of the unsuccessful Greek rebellion.

The spokesman said M. Venizelos (now on the Island of Rhodes) was to be considered a political refugee and therefore not subject to the provisions of the treaty of extradition.

B.C. Retailers Ask New Laws To Protect Business

Huchvale, representing the Retail Employees Association.

Hon. George A. Pearson, Minister of Labor, made the chief reply on behalf of the government.

MAY RE-ENACT SPA

During the gathering Premier Pattullo announced that before the present session of the Legislature was over the government would likely re-enact the Special Powers Act, which he said had received so much criticism when put through last year as being dictatorial. The Premier said that re-enacting of the SPA "would permit us to pass any legislation in determ- tail with what Ottawa passes" in the way of social or economic measures.

In connection with the suggestion of legislation to regulate business further here, the Premier spoke cautiously. He told of his visit to Washington, D.C., a few months ago when he met and conferred with General Hugh Johnson, chief administrator of the NRA, and Daniel Richberg, and other chiefs of the Roosevelt brain trust, who all told him that after their few months of experience with the NRA efforts to regulate business, they were now curtailing rather than expanding such regulation.

The Premier said that Alberta had passed some regulatory legislation governing retail businesses, but the advice from Edmonton now was that they wished they had never tackled it at all.

UNDERSTANDS DIFFICULTIES

Speaking as a retail merchant of forty years' experience, and one of the pioneers in their organization, Mr. Pearson said he could understand the difficulties the retailers of the province were now laboring under.

"If this problem you are facing now has done one thing, it has brought you people together—and that is something," the minister told the retailers.

Mr. Pearson pointed out that under the competitive system, business over a period of years regulated itself, although during periods of depression, which were pruning years, businesses less able to withstand the strain were strewn along the wayside.

"It is not the business of government to regulate competition to the extent that it becomes inefficient," Mr. Pearson said. "You retailers are believers in the competitive system. If you eliminate competition the whole of that structure is undermined. If you expect and hope that the competitive system continue, you must regulate your own system. The trouble is that you are up against the difficulty of regulating that system yourselves. What you are up against is really the problem of how to control the few who infringe."

Mr. Pearson declared he did not think the retailers were on sound ground in asking the provincial government to regulate mail order houses. Generally speaking, he did not think that "you could tax any business out of business."

"The mail order competition is a problem because the mail order people have a privilege of the post office," Mr. Pearson continued. "I think you are right in urging that the government of Canada should insist that the problem of carrying goods by mail should be borne by the people wo buy those goods."

B.C. GOVERNMENT MOVING

He said that the provincial government coluld correct such conditions as those arising from sweat shops, hours of work, and wages.

"That this government has been seeking to do," he continued, "and when we have done that we have gone a long way towards putting you on an equal basis."

Dealing with the complaints against false advertising by merchants and other irregular and deceptive methods, Mr. Pearson placed them in the category of moral forces, and "it is almost impossible to set up legislation that will stop them." However, he believed the retailers were on the right track in seeking to have a board of business practices set up.

"What you ask is really is that we agree to take power to supplement the legislation passed by the Dominion," Mr. Pearson went on. "There could be some experimenting under a Trades Board Act. But the confidential opinion of the government in Alberta, where it is being tried, is that they would be glad if they had never seen it, just as in the same way the United States is beginning to feel it would be glad if it had never seen the NRA.

"MOSTLY MORAL WEAKNESSES"

"The particular evils you complain against are mostly moral weaknesses and the difficulty is that you can't regulate moral weaknesses entirely—although you can do something to circumscribe them. Business practices must be corrected by education of the business community itself and the consumers, who should be shown that certain types of merchants are out to give a square deal while others are not. When you get to that you will have gone a long way towards remedying conditions."

Mr. Matthews, expressing the appreciation of the delegation after the replies of Mr. Pearson and the Premier, said: "We feel thankful that our petition has been interpreted correctly."

OTHERS SUPPORT MERCHANTS

Mrs. Rolston, in urging that enabling legislation be enacted in B.C. to carry out reforms proposed in the federal sphere, said that "women, who are the chief buyers, are dependent on advertisements put out by local merchants, and often it is too late when they learn whether the advertisement was truthful or not."

Mr. Huchvale, representing the retail employees' organization, said that they, 5,000 strong, endorsed wholeheartedly in every way the movement of the merchants for getting a square deal.

"If we are going to preserve our social order and progress, there must be some form of decentralization," said Rev. Mr. Paul, in bringing the support of the clergy to the delegation. "There is also the problem of exploitation—an evil not unconnected with low prices in business."

Mr. Paul urged the need of a planned economy with due regard to the human and moral values involved for intelligent regulation of retail business.

Mr. Matthews in presenting the statement of the retailers to the government, prepared by President Watson, stated that all classifications of retail business were represented from every "city, town, village and community throughout British Columbia."

"It is a matter of common knowledge that the people of Canada are aroused to a desire for a control of business methods which will permit a right of livelihood to all those who buy and sell on fair and honest terms," Mr. Matthews said. "From one end of Canada to the other there comes the feeling that the retail merchant must be preserved as part of our economic fabric and as part of our community life, and that he must not be driven out of existence by the oppressive power of a few.

"We recognize that the new conception of the function of government involves a certain surrender on the part of the individual whereby he will consent to his affairs being regulated in some manner by central authority for his own good, for those of his own class and occupation and for the public welfare generally."

Mr. Matthews declared that besides representing thoroughly the individual retailers throughout British Columbia, the delegation represented the large chain store institutions as well.

"It is only fair to say that some very large business concerns have signed the petition recognizing that the only medium through which they can hope to save themselves from a continuance of destructive practices is through the establishing of a board by our government with power to regulate," he went on.

Referring to matters brought to light through the investigations at Ottawa and the statements there of Premier Bennett, Mr. Matthews said the merchants firmly believe that Mr. Bennett has been sincere in his statements, and that it was his firm intention to bring in legislation accordingly.

"Our organization is securing from the merchants throughout Canada, petitions to the Prime Minister seeking the establishment of a Fair Trade Board, clothed with authority to govern fair trading practices and setting up the necessary machinery for enforcement," Mr. Matthews said. "We have reason to believe that our request will be granted. We now call upon the government of this province to take note of these matters and to bring in the necessary legislation to supplement such a measure within the jurisdiction of this province."

B.N.A. ACT OFTEN SUBTERFUGE

Mr. Matthews declared it was not for the merchants to specify in detail the manner in which such legislation should be brought in.

"It might be said there are some constitutional difficulties in the way, but we say that if there are such difficulties then you should and can surmount them. We wish to say frankly that we believe the people have grown weary of the excuse that the B.N.A. Act blocks the way, and we believe that many of the replies of this nature in the past have simply been a subterfuge to encourage delay. It is a question of a will and a way," said Mr. Matthews.

The former Postmaster-General said he was referring to the Mounties "at the risk of being threatened with another suit for contempt of court and arrest." He evidently referred to recent statements credited to a Montreal lawyer, criticizing Mr. Veniot for attacking the R.C.M.P. in a speech in the House.

Mr. Veniot said he had no objection to police destroying smuggled liquor on the vessel. His criticism was against the police destroying food while people were on relief.

National Revenue Minister R. C. Matthews said control of police lay in the Justice Department, suggesting inquiries be made there.

"W. M. ALLAN,
"General Agent, Pacific Steamship Lines Limited."

JUSTICE COMMENTS

"Dear Mr. Mayor:—

"I write to suggest you strongly in your proper stand, (as reported in The Colonist of March 1) in opposing any change in Victoria from the standard time now prevailing in the seaports of these latitudes; because to make any local change in Victoria apart from the general adaptation of it by all the ports interested would be little short of suicidal on the part of Victoria, especially, being as it is the half-way house, so to speak, of the main line of marine tourist travel between the three chief ports of Victoria, Vancouver and Seattle; and not only these, but also the lesser but far from unimportant ones, e.g., Port Angeles, Bellingham Bay and Nanaimo. Surely there are already more than enough serious obstacles and impediments to travelers to our city without throwing into the situation the further confusing and inconvenient 'monkey-wrench' of a change of time, so disturbing to all concerned. It will fortify your enlightened opposition to this harmful proposal to know that the electors of this city of Vancouver had the good sense to 'snow under' that same proposal when it was advanced here in December, 1932, and at the plebiscite on the question taken at the time of the municipal elections on December 14, it was rejected by an adverse majority of 11,834 votes! Need more be said to justify you?

"Yours very faithfully,

"ARCHER MARTIN."

AUTOMOTIVE STAND

"Dear Mr. Mayor:—

"At a representative meeting of the Automobile Dealers-Garages-Service Stations and allied trades, the following resolution by Mr. R. R. Taylor, Victoria Super-Service Station, seconded by Mr. W. Davies, Davis-Drake Motors

"That we as a representative gathering endorse the movement of daylight saving in the City of Victoria for 1935.'

"Yours very truly,

"LOUIS MICHELIN, Secretary."

STRAW VOTE

"Gentlemen:—

"In order to give your honorable body a 'lead' in the matter of 'daylight saving,' I undertook to take a show of hands from the evening congregation concerning this matter. There were 1,100 persons present, representing a complete cross section of the city and surrounding municipalities, as indicated by a card index taken at the service.

"Calling for an expression on this matter for and against, without discussing the merits of the proposition either way, the following was the result:

"For daylight saving, 8 per cent.

"Against daylight saving, 92 per cent.

"Trusting that this tally may be of use to your honorable body and remaining always at your service,

"Respectfully,

"CLEM DAVIES."

SPORTS OUTLOOK

"Gentlemen:—

"The Lower Island Softball Association wishes to go on record as being in favor of Daylight Saving as promoted by Alderman Wills.

"It is felt that this will add greatly to the promotion of sport and create a better tourist attraction.

"Yours sincerely,

"F. E. OLIVER,
"Secretary, Lower Island Softball Association."

"Life Is Not Very Kind TO WOMEN"

A friend remarked the other day.
The womanly system is a bundle of nerves.
From the time when the maid becomes a woman
Until the "change of life" period,
There are repeated critical times,
When the nervous system is severely strained.
If good health is to be maintained
The nervous system must be supplied
With an abundance of rich, red blood.
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food goes to form new, rich blood
And is of the greatest benefit to women
At these critical times in her life.
The pale, anaemic girl,
The mother whose strength is sapped by child-birth and nursing,
The woman who is nervous about middle life—
All benefit remarkably by using this time-proven restorative.

Slot Machines Stated Smuggled

Commons Told Duty Evaded; Minister Will Investigate

Canadian Press

Ottawa, March 13.—Slot machines are being smuggled into Canada on a large scale, C. E. Bothwell, Liberal, Swift Current, Sask., told the House of Commons yesterday evening.

Hon. R. C. Matthews, Minister of National Revenue, whose estimates were under consideration, said he had not heard of this report, but would investigate it.

Mr. Bothwell suggested the department follow up slot machines seized by police and collect duty where it had not been paid, in this way helping the police to control gambling. The machines were usually made for legal use, said Mr. Bothwell, but were altered into gambling devices. When seized by the police under the Criminal Code they were destroyed, but if customs duty were then collected it would make an additional penalty and an additional deterrent from this type of offence.

Bank of Canada Bill For Jubilee

Trade Agreement List Is Widened

Articles Added to Canadian-French Pact Now Before Commons

Canadian Press

Ottawa, March 13.—Canada and France have added to the list of commodities on which mutual preferences are given in the additional protocol to the Canada-France trade agreement of 1933, negotiated by Prime Minister Bennett and the late Louis Barthou in Paris last September. They were revealed Monday afternoon when the House of Commons gave first reading to a bill by which Parliament will formally ratify the supplementary agreement.

The Canadian commodities include potatoes (to French West Indies only), resinous products, wood pulp, gold pen nibs and empty casks, and some concessions are made on maple products. French products receiving additional concessions in the Canadian customs schedule include lace and embroideries of various kinds, raffia and sisal fibres and women's dress kid gloves.

The bill was not debated yesterday, and will probably be brought up later in the week, when second reading will be moved.

PHYSICIANS IN GERMANY LISTED

Associated Press

Berlin, March 13.—Physicians in the Reich who are admitted to practice under the sickness insurance laws are listed as Aryan or non-Aryan by the punctuation following their names, it was learned to-day.

In the register of doctors the names of the Aryans are followed by periods. Those of Jews are followed by commas and those of Aryans with Jewish wives are followed by semicolons.

Under the law governing the appointment of physicians for which the Krankenkassen, or compulsory insurance offices, pay the bills, non-aryan physicians who either were soldiers during the World War or already were practicing before 1914, are admitted.

In the opinion of some observers the use of the comma after the Jewish names is an adroit warning to the militant Anti-semites.

Orders have been issued by police at Angermuende that Jewish organizations which train young Jews to be farmers or artisans in Palestine should be given preferred treatment over those which encourage Jews to remain in Germany.

In many places Jewish speakers cannot urge Jews to remain in the country.

DUTY INCREASE PLAN DELAYED

Higher Import Levy on Aluminum Postponed in Japan For Year

By PERCY WHITEING
Canadian Press Correspondent

Tokio, March 13.—Although the executive committee of the government's tariff investigation commission had tentatively decided to advise requesting the Diet's sanction in its present session for raising the aluminum import duty, the committee has now decided to drop the matter at least until the next session a year hence.

The commission explained it had not had sufficient opportunity to study the matter thoroughly. The proposal to raise the duty was aroused by agitation for protection by the various interests manufacturing or projecting the manufacture of aluminum in Japan.

Several consuming companies, however, strongly protested against such a raise, for the time being at any rate.

The preliminary plan was to raise the duty from the present 5 per cent to 20 per cent on aluminum ingots and 30 per cent on aluminum scrap. It is predicted the duty will be raised on this basis eventually.

ANCIENT GRAINS OF RICE SPROUT

By PERCY WHITEING
Canadian Press Correspondent

Tokio, March 13.—Grains of rice hermetically sealed, perhaps by accident, inside a Buddhist image known to have been made 1,000 years ago, sprouted a few days after being planted recently.

The rice was found inside a statue of the Saint Yakushi Nyorai in the Zensuijl Temple in Zensuul, Shiga prefecture, near Kyoto, when it was found necessary to repair the image. When made, the statue was covered with lacquer, thus keeping out moisture and preserving the cereal through ten centuries.

WELLS URGES WORLD DEAL

British Author, Visiting Washington, Advocates New Economic Era

Associated Press

Washington, March 13.—To H. G. Wells, Brig.-General Hugh S. Johnson, U.S. Senator Huey P. Long and Rev. Father Charles E. Coughlin are like "great winds blowing across the nation."

"I don't know which way these winds are blowing yet," the British author said on his arrival here yesterday, "but they are very interesting, and I hope to learn something of their meaning and importance while I am in this country."

Saying he believed the whole world needs a new deal, Mr. Wells suggested creation of an "economic and financial League of Nations" to help solve its problems.

In an interview he said that economic and financial troubles are of far greater importance than wars and armament disputes, and that some sort of change, "greater, perhaps, than any of us realize," is inevitable.

Mr. Wells will be entertained at luncheon Thursday by President Roosevelt.

DOG GUARDING BODY OF MASTER

Canadian Press

Rimbey, Alta., March 13.—Faithful till death—and beyond—a small dog of the breed generally classed as "nondescript," still mounts guard here over the body of his master, Thomas Wilson, sixty-one, found dead from exhaustion and exposure by the side of a road last week. Instructions as to funeral arrangements are awaited from relatives in England.

Wilson had walked twenty miles from his home in a little shack that housed him and his dog to the store at the Leedale post office and was within two miles of his home on the return journey when his strength apparently failed.

The small dog protected the body until help arrived, even then refused to leave his master and now is staying at the funeral parlor here.

Associated Press

Los Angeles, March 13.—One of two prominent screen actors arrested on drunk driving charges in the city's current drive against traffic law violations pleaded guilty to the accusation yesterday.

Grant Withers, actor, was released on $250 bail to appear for arraignment on a charge of drunk driving before the same judge who sentenced Talbot, Justice of the Peace Cecil D. Holland of Beverly Hills.

WORK STARTS ON NEW ARMORIES

Canadian Press

Ottawa, March 13.—Out of $2,530,000 allotted to the Defence Department for construction work, commitments of $1,495,094 have been made, Defence Minister Grote Stirling told the House of Commons yesterday. These include barracks at Calgary, armories at Dundas, Ont., and Montreal, and other works elsewhere.

At Calgary the government is committeed to spend $695,472. A barrack building for the permanent force will cost $163,546, with $147,250 to be spent on the mess building, $128,256 on grading and the landing field $110,000 for the sewer and water system and $35,169 for the married men's quarters. The fee of the architect, W. S. Bates of Calgary, is $35,400.

The armory of the Seaforth Highlanders at Vancouver will be built and commitments of $42,127 have already been made, according to the minister.

School Estimates To Be Arbitrated

Canadian Press

New Westminster, March 13.—The city council contending the 1935 school board estimates, totaling $346,382, are beyond the city's ability to pay, has decided to submit the issue to an arbitration board.

The school board had been asked to reduce its estimates to $230,000, but the council received a letter stating no reduction could be made.

A Law Every Mother Should Know and Observe

Never Give Your Child An Unknown Remedy without Asking Your Doctor First

"MOTHER, never give your child a remedy you don't know all about, without asking your doctor first." This is the only safe rule. If mothers knew what scientists and doctors know, they would never violate it.

Child specialists, family physicians and writers on health subjects, all stand together on this point.

When it comes to the important—and frequently used—"milk of magnesia," you know what the qualified advice is. Doctors, for over 50 years have said, "PHILLIPS'

Milk of Magnesia . . . the safe remedy for your child."

For Phillips' is the result of over a half century of continuous laboratory research—is rated the finest science knows in its field.

So—always say Phillips' when you buy. And for your own peace of mind, see that your child gets what you ask for—when you are asked to accept an unknown preparation in place of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

Safety for You and Yours

You can assist others by refusing to accept a substitute for the genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia. Do this in the interest of yourself and your children.

Talking is the easiest, most effective way to reach an understanding with another man

WHEN there are two minds to be brought into agreement with each other, the easiest and most effective method is by conversation. Talking is the simplest way to make facts clear and to locate and remove obstacles in the path of agreement. The method is rapid and informal.

Distance is no longer a barrier to conversation. The long-distance telephone service enables you to talk to distant people as though they were beside you. You have an opportunity to utilize the personality of your voice, and you can gain the close attention of the people to whom you talk.

Long-distance telephoning is so easy and satisfactory that often it can be used as a substitute for travelling.

A CANADIAN VICTORY

THE CANADIAN GOVERNMENT, through High Commissioner Ferguson, British Columbia's acting Agent-General McAdam, and Lumber Commissioner Loren Brown, has won a signal victory for the second time in persuading the British Board of Trade to remove the famous "fall clause" from the contract into which British Timber Distributors Limited had entered with Soviet Russia lumber exporters. Only a few days ago it looked as if the protest against this discriminating clause which succeeded last year was doomed to failure this year; but the good work put in by Canada's representatives in London seems to have won over Rt. Hon. Walter Runciman, President of the British Board of Trade.

The "fall clause" in the Anglo-Russian contract provides that if lumber imported by Great Britain from any other source should fall below the price agreed upon in that contract, that price would be adjusted to meet it, giving the importers the benefit. In other words, the price set out in the deal between Timber Distributors Limited and the Soviet exporters has an elastic application which gives Russia an advantage over Canada, the United States, and other countries farther afield because they sell at a stipulated price from time to time. Russia is the only country which can operate under the "fall clause" contractual scheme because the government controls the industry. Canada, therefore, last year, and again this year, has emphasized the significance of the Canada-United Kingdom trade treaty entered into at the Imperial Conference in the summer of 1932.

High Commissioner Ferguson and other officials doing duty for Canada in Britain have been losing no opportunity to drive home the real meaning of Article 21 in that trade pact. Last year's protest, as already pointed out, was upheld by the British Board of Trade, and it has been for some time puzzling to Canadian exporters of lumber, why, if it was sound in 1934, it should not be sound in 1935. Apparently, Mr. Runciman, although President of the Board of Trade under what, after all, is a Conservative government, has finally permitted his Free Trade up-bringing—for he still is an ardent Free Trader—to become subservient to the solemn undertaking to which Canadian and British statesmen appended their signatures nearly three years ago. Article 21, by the way, reads as follows:

> This agreement is made on the express condition that, if either government is satisfied that any preferences hereby granted in respect of any particular class of commodities are likely to be frustrated in whole or in part by reason of the creation or maintenance directly or indirectly of prices for such class of commodities through state action on the part of any foreign country, that government hereby declares that it will exercise the powers which it now has or will hereafter take to prohibit the entry from such foreign country directly or indirectly of such commodities into its country for such time as may be necessary to make effective and to maintain the preferences hereby granted by it.

The protest against the "fall clause," however, was not the only protest lodged with the British government by the Canadian government. Early in the year, Hon. R. B. Hanson, Minister of Trade and Commerce at Ottawa, reminded the authorities in London that whereas last year the contract entered into between Timber Distributors Limited and the Soviet exporting agency—through Canadian objections—had been reduced from 450,000 standards, or 900,000,000 feet board measurement, to 350,000 standards, this year the contract calls for 400,000 standards, or 800,000,000 feet. This part of the double protest does not seem to have succeeded.

British Columbia, of course, is vitally interested in Great Britain's imports of lumber. True, we have increased our exports to the United Kingdom in recent years, not only because our lumbermen have gone after the business, but also because our exporters have recognized the demand of British importers, that if they are to buy from us, we must comply with their requirements in the matter of specifications. Our lumbermen know they still have very considerable missionary work to do in wearing down old prejudices; but it is to their credit that they are on the job and do not intend to admit defeat.

It is a matter of common knowledge that for very many years Russia and other northern European countries have been supplying the British market with all its timber requirements, with the exception of a comparatively small amount supplied by the North American continent. Only four years ago, for example, Canada's share of an import volume of about 4,000,000,000 feet was approximately 173,000,000 feet, compared with Russia's 1,035,000,000 feet, and 1,492,000,000 supplied jointly by Finland and Sweden. Even Latvia, in 1930, exceeded Canada's sales by more than 50,000,000 feet.

As time goes on, however, and as our timber producers "get the hang" of the British market and wear down a century-old prejudice, the lumber industry of this province, giving work to many people in the woods, creating greater and greater production in scores of industries that produce the supplies the lumber industry requires, will thoroughly realize the full value of the work the Canadian government and Canadian officials in London have done in getting this "fall clause" removed from the 1935 contract.

TEETH AND QUINTUPLETS

YESTERDAY ANNETTE SPROUTED A tooth. To-day Yvonne became the runner-up in the teething race of the Dionne quintuplets. Which of the others will qualify for third place? Will it be Marie, Cecile or Emelie? Here is a chance for the sweepstake fan, or perhaps even for a gamble on a larger scale. It is rather surprising that Lloyds, which seldom misses a bet on anything in this world, has not issued the game of the five little Dionnes against the lacerations of their first teeth.

If the latest offspring of the simple Callander couple had been merely triplets the world never would have heard of this most recent addition to their physical equipment, for it would not have been news. Triplets, while unusual, no longer are novelties. However formidable they are as economic problems they can not make the spotlight. What is the use of being a mere triplet when a Dionne quintuplet can point the finger of scorn at you?

The Dionne babies are not going to be an economic problem, since Ontario has made ample provision for their future. The province also has made itself a party to their guardianship by special legislation, much to the annoyance of Mr. and Mrs. Dionne, who bitterly complain that the government is acting as if it, instead of the father and mother, were the parents of the quintuplets, as if, in fact, it was the government upon whom Dr. Dafoe made his emergency call a little more than nine months ago.

The revolt is logical enough, for the fact that Canada has produced a phenomenon which has given to her more advertisement than anything else she ever has produced or done, should not obscure the natural ties which exist between parents and their offspring, nor the necessity of seeing that the quintuplets are raised within the orbit of the Dionne family life in the usual intimate relation with their young brothers and sisters. In this respect the state should walk very warily or it will impose certain handicaps upon the five sisters from which they will suffer later on. There should be no barrier erected between the quintuplets and the other children. All of them are Dionnes, and should be raised as such, not as a combination of celebrities and mediocrities.

TECHNICAL SCHOOLS

MR. BRUHN'S ASSERTION IN THE LEGislature that technical schools are more important than universities may be debatable in its general application, but as far as Canada particularly is concerned it can be sustained by the weight of evidence easily enough. While admittedly our universities have made many important contributions to the country's progress, it is useless to try to dodge the reality that the Dominion is, and will continue to be for many years, a place whose chief problem must demand technical training in the widest sense. If this condition had been appreciated more fully twenty-five years ago and the country dotted with technical schools there would have been infinitely less unemployment during the depression than we have had.

Many of the young people in the universities never should be there. They go there either without the faintest ultimate object in view or hope to enter into some profession not because they have any natural adaptability for it but because it is supposed to be more respectable than other callings associated with the physical development of the country for which they really are adapted. The result, of course, is that when they graduate into a limited orbit of usefulness they clutter up the employment market.

Technical schools based upon the physical needs of the country, on the realization that what Canada needs is not more school teachers, doctors, lawyers, and so forth, but more trained workers among her primary resources, more operatives in overalls and jumpers. The Dominion is, in fact, more an outdoor proposition than most other countries, and its youth should be diverted very largely in that direction by the training it receives in our schools. With a proper system of technical training many young people in elementary grades would be directed away from the path of a so-called higher education which would hold for them nothing but futilities, and into pursuits in which they could get somewhere in the future.

Why spoil a perfectly good potential moulder by trying to make a professor out of him? Why ruin the prospects of a youth who would be a successful farmer by trying to make a lawyer out of him? What is the use to anybody of transforming a naturally good mechanic into an indifferent doctor? Many first-class loggers, saw-mill and mine workers are better off than many professional men upon whose university education large sums have been expended by the state and by themselves. In Canada the depression implies an indictment of many customs and practices which have become orthodox because they are orthodox in other countries whose fundamental conditions and requirements are entirely different, and one of them is an educational system which, with certain comparatively limited exceptions, puts first things last in the training of its youth, instead of first things first.

WHAT OTHER PAPERS SAY

HEED THE EXPERTS

The Winnipeg Tribune

Now more than ever the farmer should pay heed to the experts. If we go along in the course of the last decade, simply planting wheat of every kind and variety on every available acre, there is a lively prospect of disaster. It is time to look ahead, and plan production that will be marketed with least difficulty.

Napoleon's historic jibe at England notwithstanding nations must buy and sell if their citizens are to be clothed and fed and housed. Never in the history of the world have industry and trade demanded so much from human intelligence as they do in our own day. Human destinies depend upon them, and neither can be successfully prosecuted without the aid of technically trained minds and industrial and commercial leadership of the highest quality.

Hence the present utilization by industrialists and traders of the facilities of the British Industries Fair, through the medium of which Great Britain, the Dominions, India and the Colonies are displaying their wares to buyers from all parts of the world. In this traffic of commercial intercourse Canada, by the wealth of her resources, as well as from economic necessity, is taking a prominent part.

Her manufacturers and exporters are looking for an extension of trade overseas, and they hope in no little measure to achieve their purposes.

Loose Ends

We are bored but agreeable—as we ramble on through the estimates — talking about health and turnips and all manner of things — on our way home.

By BRUCE HUTCHISON

ON OUR WAY

THAT OLD, FAMILIAR going-home feeling hung heavy over the House on Tuesday. Everybody is getting a little tired of the session. Apart from the Vancouver financial situation and the New Westminster bridge there isn't much to keep the session alive at all.

Tuesday afternoon was devoted to a long, rambling and thoroughly friendly talk over the estimates, which are swimming along so fast that Finance Minister Hart should have his whole supply granted by to-night. The C.C.F. rode the estimates a little harder than on the previous day, but they had practically no criticism, for they were dealing with the departments of Dr. Weir, who is regarded as the chief radical of the cabinet. On the Opposition side they consider him a friend even if he isn't prepared to go the length of socialism.

Dr. Weir, easily the ablest administrator this province has ever had in the realms of social welfare and reform, gave the House in passing an insight into what may easily prove to be the Pattullo Government's chief monument. Dr. Weir, it appears, is quietly building up a new health and social welfare system in British Columbia which should make it the leader in this work in Canada.

He supplied the House with a formidable array of figures to show just what disease costs us in dollars and cents, apart altogether from the human misery involved. He showed how closely health is related to economics, how life can be prolonged, happiness increased, if the public can be given adequate health services, such as he hopes to develop with the backing of a health insurance scheme.

COING AHEAD

FOR THE MOMENT, Dr. Weir is held up on health insurance, because the province does not know what the Dominion is going to do about it. As the federal government's legislation is read here—a section in the unemployment insurance act—there is little prospect of a nation-wide health insurance scheme for some time anyway. Meanwhile, Dr. Weir is going ahead with the organization of a provincial scheme and will be ready to legislate on it a year from now. He is using the extra $100,000 which he has managed to get for health to organize the skeleton of the system, which will be rounded out when he gets the money through health insurance.

No one questioned Dr. Weir's programme. Probably the strongest support came from the Opposition. The elder Mr. Winch, who seems to have spent most of the last year visiting these institutions — perhaps in the optimistic expectation of the day when he will be running them—likes nothing better than to tell the House all about them. By the time he and Dr. Weir have talked these things over in exhaustive detail the afternoon is pretty well spent.

CRAVE MENACE

BUT SANDWICHED in between Dr. Weir's estimates the House managed to interject a few extraneous motions. Mr. Manson, for example, came out for a strong campaign in the schools to teach the children the evils of alcohol and the value of temperance; a plan which, by the way, would gravely undermine the finances of the government if it were successful in reducing the consumption of hard liquor. Even now, with the temperance education already proceeding in the schools, we are trying to stop people from drinking liquor through one department, and through another doing everything possible to increase its consumption for the sake of revenue.

Mr. Pearson seized the opportunity presented by the estimates committee, in which you can discuss just about everything, to make an announcement important to every working man in British Columbia. He said there was no truth whatever in the story that the finances of the Workmen's Compensation Board had been badly shaken by the decline in the value of the interest-bearing securities it holds. While a few securities had depreciated, Mr. Pearson said, others had appreciated, with the result that everything was in excellent shape. Every three years one of the chiefs actuaries in Canada checks over the board's affairs, and on his last inspection, made in 1933, he found a surplus of $250,000 in the board's accounts, which was returned, in the form of reduced assessments, to those classes of industry and labor which accumulated it.

This came as a relief to many members, particularly to R. H. Pooley, K.C., who said that when he was in charge of the board's operations two years ago, he was rather worried about its future.

TURNIPS

THE REST of the day was devoted to institutions like the mental hospitals, Mr. Winch, the elder, asserting that all members of the House should spend some time there. His subsequent remark that they should go as visitors and not as patients somehow lacked conviction.

When it came to the Tranquille farm, the House enjoyed the advantage of expert advice from an unsuspected farmer, none other than Mr. Manson. He gave the House the benefit of a boyhood agricultural training which has been rather overlooked in these premises, or buried under Mr. Manson's other better-known accomplishments in law and politics. Dr. Gillis, too, displayed a remarkable knowledge of agriculture and it was a pleasure to hear him discuss the price of turnips with that other practical farmer, Dr. Weir.

It was also pleasant, at another point, to hear some unsolicited appreciation of the work of one of British Columbia's most outstanding public servants, Dr. H. E. Young, provincial health officer. From Dr. Weir came the statement that Dr. Young would go down in history as one of the greatest Canadian pioneers in public health work, a man who had still a great contribution to make to the welfare of the people.

This praise was echoed by Dr. Gillis, a medical man, who could speak as an expert.

Dr. Weir also had praise for his new director of welfare, Dr. Harry Cassidy, the brilliant young sociologist who, the minister frankly admitted, he had managed to purloin from the east before the Ontario government could get hold of him. Where you would expect an opposition to object to these new expenditures, the C.C.F., through Mr. Bakewell, had only congratulations for Dr. Weir and agreed that Dr. Cassidy was the best man in Canada for the job of building a new health and welfare system in British Columbia.

Altogether, it was a pleasantly dull afternoon, full of information but utterly barren of news or excitement.

THE CRAFTSMAN'S JOY

What gladness has the craftsman
Who knows his work is good?
More joy than in the roof he buys
And better than the food!

What triumph lies in matching
Rare pearls or shining wools,
Of gearing wheels to steer a ship,
Or weaving sturdy goods!

It brings content far deeper
Than ruddy coin can give.
To feel that through the work he does
A bit of truth will live.

Though human, failing of the goal,
He struggles to express,
To know his finger tips, his brain
Have visioned perfectness!

THE DAILY ROUND

All up and down the people go,
All up and down and round about
In single file and row by row,
The little children laugh and shout;
The high school seniors look at us
As if we'd wasted all our years;
The workers hurry for the bus
And then a solemn hearse appears.

At slower pace the grey beards tread,
Bewildered often and afraid,
Nor all the countless millions dead
When spring returns the nursemaids take
Their charges to the parks to play,
And feed the swans upon the lake
And will a thousand years away.

Upon the corners newsboys call
The startling sales the columns tell;
Through corridor and marble hall
Pass men with little wares to sell.
But whether post be high or low
Each day the self-same scenes we face.
Out there where workers come and go,
Not long remains a vacant place.

Things change, but still the world goes on
And still man wakes to plough the soil
Or in some way till strength be gone,
Sustain himself by daily toil.
Life will our history repeat,
From birth until the funeral knell,
And every newsboy on the street
Will have the selfsame tales to tell.

DAYLIGHT SAVING

To the Editor:—I sincerely trust that we will be successful this year in bringing this great advantage into being and put Victoria in line with the more progressive cities in the east. Mr. Archie Wills's three reasons for daylight saving, "health, economy and recreation," are well taken. It means a change of hundreds of hours of darkness for daylight. It also means thousands of dollars saving in public and private lighting—certainly a consideration these days, especially to the working man.

For the thousands of shut-in store and office employees, daylight saving is one of the greatest blessings devised by progress and means hundreds of hours of extra health-giving sunlight.

In most European countries daylight saving is considered such a definite advantage from the standpoints of health and economy to the masses that it has become statutory law. Whether your hobbies are gardening, golfing, tennis, bowling, or just working around home, you will find it more profitable and healthier to do it by daylight.

Duke of Kent Has Donated Trophy

Quebec, March 12.—His Royal Highness the Duke of Kent has honoured the Kent Golf Club here with a magnificent trophy, W. J. Lynch, president of the club, announced yesterday. The trophy, which arrived here this week, is a beautiful sterling silver cup bearing the Duke's royal crest.

It will be put up for annual competition on the Kent course each summer during the invitation tournament the third week in June. The trophy will be known as the Duke of Kent Cup, and the competition will be open to amateur golfers in Canada.

The present Duke of Kent during his visit to Canada with the Prince of Wales in 1927 played several rounds on the Kent links.

THOUSANDS IN HUNT FOR GOLD

Many Will Search Hills in Western United States and Alaska

San Francisco, March 12.—A rush of gold prospectors, some seeking fortune and others a living wage, soon will head toward the hills of the western states and Alaska to dig and pan the yellow metal.

Warmer weather will see prospectors busy in Nevada, although many amateur and experienced miners already are seeking deposits there.

Alaska expects a great gold rush in half a dozen fields, with experienced miners and prospectors believing the price of gold may soar from $35 to $41.50 an ounce.

Pan and rocker mining is being carried on along small streams in the southwestern corner of Oregon, with the men satisfied if they make a living wage.

Thousands of amateur prospectors soon will dot California hills with their camps, although heavy snowfalls may hinder somewhat their search for gold.

More than 12,000 amateurs took their picks and pans to likely gold bearing locations in California last year, according to State Mineralogist Walter W. Bradley.

PEAK NUMBER IN 1933

"There is no way of estimating yet how many will prospect the year," he added, "but it is likely there will be many thousands. In 1933 it was estimated between 14,000 and 15,000 men searched for gold. They discovered $500,000 worth of the metal. In 1934, the estimate was that 12,000 prospectors found $700,000 worth."

"Millions in mineral wealth await prospectors in Alaska, but it is not a place for greenhorn miners," said Eugene C. Allen, veteran of the Klondyke gold rush.

Airplanes will play a big part in Alaska's spring gold rush, with planes taking mining machinery to distant localities.

The mineral fields expected to be involved in the rush are those around Nome, Fairbanks, Valdez, Anchorage and Seward and the Kuskokwim, Nushugak and Nulato regions.

Estimates Are Put Through

House Spends Afternoon Voting Supply For Provincial Secretary

The Legislature spent the whole of yesterday afternoon dealing with estimates of the Provincial Secretary's department and had voted slightly over $2,300,000 of the $2,315,122 appropriation when adjournment was taken until this afternoon.

When the item of the government's contribution to the Workmen's Compensation Fund came up, members queried as to the soundness of this fund and Hon. George S. Pearson, Minister of Labor, said:

"Workmen's Compensation Board funds are absolutely sound. The accounts are examined every three years by one of the most eminent actuaries in Canada. In 1933 he found the reserve had a surplus of $350,000 and this was refunded to the various classes by reduction of assessment.

"It is true that the Board has some investments in municipal bonds which are quite a way below par, and probably the price paid. But it has so many securities valued above cost that there are ample funds at to-day's valuation to take care of the necessary reserve.

Mr. Pearson said he had gone into the subject fully and that another periodical actuarial appraisal would be made next year.

GRANT FOR BLIND

Re-organization of the Canadian National Institute for the Blind is to be undertaken during the coming year, Hon. George M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, stated when Ernest Winch, C.C.F., Burnaby, questioned the efficiency of the management. The government's annual grant to the institute was under review.

"Some of the complaints on investigation have not been justified," said Dr. Weir, "but with the Deputy Minister of Labor, the Superintendent of Welfare, M. C. Robinson (the manager) and myself some re-organization will be effected this year."

Mr. Winch said the manager and his wife drew $350 a month in addition to a large pension while the blind persons got very small allowances. He questioned that the broom factory was efficiently managed.

CHARITY WORK

A suggestion from A. M. Manson, K.C., Liberal, Omineca, and Mrs. Steeves, C.C.F., North Vancouver, that the government should seek a greater co-ordination of charitable work and grants to charity in the province elicited from Dr. Weir that the department was busily engaged in that task.

"We brought back a brilliant British Columbian to take charge of this work," he said. "But we have not advanced to the point in our social evolution where charity can be eliminated. Health insurance will help to co-ordinate and put on a more efficient basis many of these services. We are trying to do a twentieth century job with eighteenth century equipment. That is why there are so many anomalies."

The discussion arose out of the fact that a grant of $800 to the Provincial Red Cross was supplemented by another $160 to the New Westminster Red Cross and that the W.C.T.U. of Victoria gets $1360.

"Why Victoria only?" asked Mr. Manson.

It turned out that the W.C.T.U. in Victoria operates a provincial home and that the New Westminster Red Cross does special work for the war veterans at Essondale.

Mr. Manson noted a grant to Grace Hospital and asked if it was true this hospital refuses to have its accounts audited.

"Not by the government," said Dr. Weir, "although it may object to the Welfare Federation doing it."

He assured Mrs. Steeves that the government audited accounts of institutions to which grants were made and that the health officer checked over the general efficiency of their work.

FUNERAL COSTS

When the vote of $8,000 for burial of indigent persons was up, E. T. Kenny, Liberal, Skeena, urged the government to make larger provision on this account. The government allowed $35 per funeral and in outlying districts undertakers could not carry our burials at this price, he said. The plot cost $7, the grave-digging $7.50 and this left only a small amount for transportation and the casket.

The vote for caring for the destitute poor and sick in the outlying districts was increased from $100,000 to $110,000, Dr. Weir explaining that many of those formerly on relief had come onto this fund.

STERILIZATION URGED

When the mental hospitals vote was passed, E. E. Winch, C.C.F., Burnaby, furnished the House with a long description of the conditions in these institutions and advocated sterilization of all the mentally unfit.

Dr. Weir announced that progress was being made in effecting arrangements with other provinces by which each province would care for mental cases of its own origin. B.C. is caring for 160 mental cases that belong to other provinces. Ontario and B.C. have agreed on a draft agreement and Ontario is now trying to bring Quebec into line. He said he thought there will be little difficulty with the prairie provinces.

There is to be an interprovincial conference on April 24 at which he expects the agreement will be completed.

A new edition of Revised Statutes of British Columbia is to be printed this year at a cost of $6,000, Dr. Weir informed the House, explaining an increased appropriation of that amount for the printing bureau.

CONDITION OF NURSES

Working conditions of nurses came into discussion when the vote for Tranquille was before the House.

Ernest Winch pointed out that of the inmates at Tranquille no fewer than nineteen were hospital nurses.

"That shows the conditions under which nurses work in our hospitals," he said. "I am glad to have had the assurance of the Minister of Labor that he is going into this question."

Dr. Weir said that at Tranquille the nurses worked eight hours on days shift and twelve hours on night duty, with one month in three on night duty, and two weeks vacation with pay every six months.

Rev. Robert Connell said when so many nurses broke down from tuberculosis and nervous troubles it was obvious nurses were overworked in the hospitals generally. R. B. Burns, former director of Vancouver General, said many of the girls were found unfit for the strain. Mr. Connell said the incidence of T.B. in this province was increased by the enormous number of derelict wooden houses in which people continue to live.

PUBLIC ENEMY NO. 1 Must Go!

Kill that cold at once!

The real No. 1 Public Enemy is the "common" cold. It is a constant menace to our health and well being and should be "killed" quickly.

A cold is an infection produced within the system by a germ. Common sense dictates that you treat it internally as an internal infection. When a cold attacks don't waste time. Use Grove's.

Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine is an internal treatment that goes directly to the source of the trouble. It does the four things necessary: First, it opens the bowels; Second, it combats the cold germs in the system and reduces the fever; Third, it relieves the headache and "grippy" feeling; Fourth, it tones up the system and helps fortify against further attacks.

At the first signs of a cold buy a box of Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine (the large size is the most economical to buy). Make sure you get Grove's. They're in a white box. Grove's Laxative Bromo Quinine has what it takes to stop a cold quickly and effectively. 45

NEARLY $40,000 for A POSTAGE STAMP

STAMP collectors of the world are eagerly awaiting the forthcoming sale of the world's costliest stamp—British Guiana's one cent black on magenta of 1856. Dull, smudgy, ragged, what makes this piece of paper valuable is the fact that it is the only one of its kind known to exist.

The late Arthur Hind, Utica, N.Y., textile manufacturer, paid $38,625 for it in 1917, and now his widow will sell it at auction this spring. Lloyd's has insured the stamp for $40,000 and it is expected to bring even more.

Clip out this feature, attach the stamp described, if you have it or can get it, and paste up in scrapbook form.

MISS WRIGHT AT ST. ANN'S

Champion Typist of Canada Gives Interesting Display Before Large Audience

Before an interested gathering of former pupils and their friends, Miss Erma Wright, Canada's champion typist and diamond medalist, yesterday evening gave a demonstration of her speed in the auditorium of St. Ann's Academy. D. L. MacLaurin, assistant superintendent of education made an efficient chairman. The stage was attractive with masses of fern and spring flowers, daffodils and carnations predominating.

In his opening remarks Mr. MacLaurin referred to the pioneer associations of St. Ann's Academy in the realm of education in Victoria. He referred to the graduates of the first commercial class, noting that one of the graduates was the second woman to pass the civil service examinations in those early days.

ACCURACY FIRST

Miss Wright gave a most interesting exhibition of her art, and also gave an instructive and informal talk that proved of great value to the large number of young stenographers present in the audience. She said she would place accuracy in office work before speed. She claimed speed in typing makes a girl more valuable to her employer, leaving her time for other work about the office. She said she had always liked her work and derived great pleasure from it. Following her demonstration she answered several questions put to her from the audience.

In her exhibition Miss Wright typed one familiar sentence at the rate of 160 words per minute. She copied at 120 words per minute and at the same time answered a number of questions put to her by Mr. MacLaurin. She demonstrated the correct postures for typing, the correct ways of holding paper and also the incorrect ways.

On behalf of a group of former commercial class pupils of St. Ann's, Miss Kathleen Nesbitt presented Miss Wright with a handsome bouquet of spring flowers. The programme was capably arranged by Sister Mary Matthew, pioneer teacher of St. Ann's commercial class.

WAS CONSTIPATED FOR 30 YEARS

Woman's Long Search for a Remedy

The trouble with most remedies for constipation, as this woman found, is that they give only temporary relief. Having at last found a permanent corrective, she writes to tell us about it:

"For upwards of 30 years I was a victim of acute constipation. I tried practically everything that it was possible to try. I admit I was a chronic case, and every new remedy I tried helped for a day or two—after that I was just as bad as ever. Three months ago I took my first taste of Kruschen Salts, and every morning since, and every morning so long as I live, my first duty upon rising is my Kruschen. I honestly feel a different woman. My bowels act to the clock, and my friends remark how well I am looking. My only regret is that I didn't try Kruschen years ago."—(Mrs.) A.M.

Kruschen Salts is Nature's recipe for maintaining a condition of internal cleanliness. The six salts in Kruschen stimulate your internal organs to smooth, regular action. Your system is thus kept clear of those impurities which, allowed to accumulate, lower the whole tone of the system. (Advt.)

COLUMBIA W.A. MEETS TO-DAY

Three-day Business Sessions Opened With Preparatory Service

An impressive service was conducted in Christ Church Cathedral yesterday evening by Rev. E. O. Robathan, rector of St. Michael's, Chemainus, in preparation for the annual meeting of Columbia W.A. Diocesan board, which opens its business sessions to-day.

There was a large attendance of W.A. members and the delegates from the up-island branches.

Five hymns were sung, and in his sermon, the lessons of the "upper room furnished and made ready" were brought out by Rev. Mr. Robathan in a deeply spiritual way, lessons of the spirit of fellowship, of which the world is sorely in need to-day, the spirit of humility and courage to face and to overcome difficulties. It was in that "upper room" that Christ set the example of true humility, and His faith in the inherent good in man. His great high priestly prayer was uttered there, and the sacramental service was instituted to keep His church in perpetual memory of His death and passion.

With this example the W.A. members were helped and encouraged "never to be discouraged under difficulties," but to go forward in the steps of the Master and obeying His command to "Go, teach all nations."

Rev. O. Robathan was among the clergy who assisted the Bishop in the administration of the Holy Communion in the cathedral this morning.

The offertory was received for the Jubilee fund during the service.

BUSINESS SESSIONS

After the registration of delegates at the Memorial Hall this morning, the business session opened with the usual formalities, with Lady Lake presiding. Mrs. C. de V. Schofield, honorary president, cordially greeted the delegates in her graceful address of welcome, to which Mrs. E. O. Robathan responded on behalf of the out-of-town visitors.

The nominations committee presented its report, after which the meeting listened with much interest to the reports presented by the diocesan officers, including Mrs. Colin Cummins, recording secretary; Mrs. Wilfred Hartley, educational secretary; Mrs. O. M. Prentice, corresponding secretary; Mrs. Stanley Hawkins, thankoffering secretary; and Mrs. T. J. Greenway, church embroidery secretary.

THURSDAY SESSION

To-morrow morning's session will open at 10 o'clock, and after the routine business Mrs. J. Dickson, convener of the Jubilee committee, will present her report. Mr. J. H. Hinton will bring information from the laymen's committee of the synod.

An interesting discussion on "Informed Members Are Interested Members" will be led by Mrs. Wilfred Hartley.

There will be no meeting to-morrow afternoon, but in the evening at 8 o'clock a meeting, open to all members, will be held in the Memorial Hall. Mrs. P. J. Primer will give an address, illustrated with many slides, on "The Diocese of the Arctic."

After the address an informal gathering will be held and refreshments served.

ESQUIMALT W.I. HAS BIRTHDAY

The fourteenth birthday anniversary of the Esquimalt Women's Institute was celebrated yesterday evening in the Parish Hall, St. Paul's garrison church, when members entertained their friends at a social evening.

The entertainment had been arranged by the past presidents of the institute and included cards, contests and games. A delicious supper was served, the table, decorated in the institute colors, was centred with a handsome birthday cake, decorated with a basket of fruit.

Winners of contests were: Mrs. A. Stewart, Mrs. J. Knowste and Duncan McLean. The prize winners at the card tables were Mr. Stewart and Mrs. Rodgers.

Preceding the social event a business meeting was held, the chair being occupied by the president, Mrs. K. Saddler. Plans discussed for the season included a garden party about June and a flower show in August. It was decided to renew the stock of linen for the institute cot in the Jubilee Hospital. Members accepted the invitation of the Canadian Canning Company to visit their plant during the berry season.

The ways and means committee reported on the successful card party held recently and announced that a card party will be held to-morrow evening in the Parish Hall.

Mrs. C. C. Spofford will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the institute on April 9.

Ministering Circle.—The Ministering Circle of the King's Daughters will meet on Friday afternoon in the rest rooms.

Members of the Gorge-Vale Golf Club will hold a "get together" bridge party at the clubhouse on Monday evening, March 18, at 8 o'clock. The clubhouse has been redecorated, and it is hoped that Monday's affair will be the first of a series of social affairs for the members. As accommodation is limited, members are requested to make early reservations to the secretary, E 0451, or to any member of the ladies' committee.

* * *

One of the many interesting features of the cabaret which is to be held on Friday, March 22, in the Empress Hotel ballroom by members of the Margaret Rocke Robertson Chapter I.O.D.E., will be the attractive opportunities afforded bridge players. Those wishing to play bridge may do so in the blue room, Elizabethan room and the lounge adjoining the ballroom. Tea will be served in the afternoon as a part of the day's programme and any desiring to play bridge may do so in the lounge. Reservations will be taken by Mrs. Alfred Woodcroft, E 8305.

Little Theatre Has Birthday

Hilariously Funny Programme Enjoyed at Celebration Yesterday

Over 100 members, including many of the charter members, attended the very successful and at times hilariously funny, birthday programme staged by the Victoria Little Theatre Association yesterday evening at its headquarters, Burdett Avenue.

The programme opened with the reading of the first annual minutes and list of charter members by Hugh Creelman, the president, who was in the chair, after which he turned the meeting over to Fraser Lister, charter member, who acted as master of ceremonies for the entertainment features. Betty Hetherington, Fraser Lister, and Master Bobby Hetherington opened the programme with a sketch, "The Train to Macro," which was followed by an original song, the words and music by Charles Guard, and sung by Fraser Lister.

A series of "black-outs" were greeted with hilarious amusement, the first by H. S. Hearn and Charles Guard being "Post This Letter," who also appeared in the second, "Drunk Again"; H. S. Hurn, Helen Hurn and C. Guard later gave "The Lower Flat," and Betty Hetherington and Fraser Lister appeared in "Number, Please."

Two short plays, "Etiquette," by Fraser Lister and Betty Hetherington, and "The Revenuer," by Dan McDonald and Bert Bailey, and a longer play, "The Necklace," with Mr. and Mrs. H. S. Hurn, Fraser Lister, Dan McDonald and Chas. Guard, were warmly applauded. Mr. Hurn's singing of "I've Never Seen a Straight Banana," in which the audience joined with much gusto, also scored a hit.

At the close of the entertainment, refreshments were served and a large birthday cake was cut with appropriate ceremony.

Announcement was made that in April the association would present "The Play's the Thing," and in May that successful play, "Maedchen in Uniform."

Mrs. Hetherington reminded the gathering of the bridge party to be held at the Empress Hotel on Thursday, March 21, at 8.30 o'clock under the auspices of the association.

WOMEN'S CANADIAN CLUB MEETING

At its meeting on Friday afternoon at the Empress Hotel, the Women's Canadian Club will hear an address by Mr. Vernon Bartlett, diplomatic correspondent of The News-Chronicle of London, England, on "European Scene." Mr. Bartlett, who is visiting Canada as a guest of the National Council of Education, has traveled extensively in Germany and Austria recently, and his comments promise to be unusually interesting in the light of recent events.

"Y" ACTIVITY IS IMPORTANT

Y.W.C.A. Travelers' Aid Is Non-remunerative Service of World-wide Scope

Concrete evidence of the appreciation generally felt for the work of the Y.W.C.A. Travelers' Aid is continually being received from organizations and individuals in the city and district.

"The work is one of the most unusual and useful fields of service in the community.

The travelers' aid is a world-wide service. In almost every city of any size, and in every port, members of the service meet every boat, train and bus, and do their part in making welcome girls and women who are reaching the place for the first time.

There is no revenue from the travelers' aid. Grants are made by the city and by various women's organizations both here and at up-island points, but the cost of the work considerably exceeds these.

It is for support in this work and in many other fields equally important, that the Victoria Y.W.C.A. is joining with the men's association in its annual financial appeal, which opened officially Monday morning.

VARIED SERVICES

Often just a smile and a friendly word of suggestion or advice will suffice and the visitor is immediately convinced that hospitality reigns supreme in Victoria. But frequently an inexperienced traveler springs eagerly off the boat, and the beaming smile vanishes and dancing eyes fill with tears when the looked-for friend fails to meet her. Mail incorrectly addressed, transportation delayed, relatives who have left the city and there is only a general delivery or rural route address known, perhaps not even that. The lonely one thinks the worst until a friendly hand grasps her arm, listens patiently to her story, promises assistance and gives assurance of protection until those sought can be located. Often these "not mets" have no funds and money is loaned to meet necessary expenses.

Then there is the happy-go-lucky girl who does not expect anyone to meet her, but is suddenly made to realize that a sweet smile will not win the immigration authorities and speed her through the customs. Happiness turns to tragedy until the Aid suggests she can go to the "Y" until arrangements can be made for her to proceed on her journey or return to her own folk.

A sick woman, coming to Victoria's glorious climate in search of health, is worn out at the end of the journey and unable to think for herself. The stewardess, who has been kind throughout the trip, hands her over in order that she may be given all possible help in finding accommodation, and perhaps medical care.

Transportation agents frequently request that small children or young strangers be taken care of during their stay in Victoria between boats, and various organizations from other parts of the country ask assistance in tracing relatives or friends of those they are seeking to help and to ascertain conditions with a view to if possible sending them to friends here.

Two typical cases of interest are as follows:

A woman arrived from Honolulu but was not met as expected by her sister. Having spent all her money she did not know how to reach her destination. This difficulty was easily solved by lending the required amount.

Two boys, one eleven and the other nine, wandered casually off the steamer from Vancouver, and upon being spoken to stated they had come from the interior and were to be met by someone. No one appeared, so a hunt was made for relatives. Finally an uncle was located who said the youngsters had arrived a day earlier than expected.

WAKE UP YOUR LIVER BILE— WITHOUT CALOMEL

And You'll Jump Out of Bed in the Morning Rarin' to Go

If you feel sour and sunk and the world looks punk, don't swallow a lot of salts, mineral water, oil, laxative candy or chewing gum and expect them to make you suddenly sweet and buoyant and full of sunshine.

For they can't do it. They only move the bowels and a mere movement doesn't get at the cause. The cause for your down-and-out feeling is your liver. It should pour two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels daily.

If this bile is not flowing freely, your food doesn't digest. It just decays in the bowels. Gas blows up your stomach. You have a thick, bad taste and your breath is fouled. Skin often breaks out in blemishes. Your head aches and you feel down and out. Your whole system is poisoned.

It takes those good, old CARTER'S LITTLE LIVER PILLS to get these two pounds of bile flowing freely and make you feel "up and at." They contain wonderful, harmless, gentle vegetable extracts, amazing when it comes to coaxing the bile flow freely.

But don't ask for liver pills. Ask for Carter's Little Liver Pills. Look for the name Carter's Little Liver Pills on the red label. Resent a substitute. Insist druggistsown. © 1935 C.M. Co.

OLDEST WOMAN IN CANADA DEAD

Winnipeg, March 12.—Believed the oldest person in Canada, Mrs. Antonina Pshepiolkowska is dead here. Her son, Michael, claimed his mother was 115 years of age.

Born in Belincy, County Borschiw, Poland, Mrs. Pshepiolkowska came to Canada when she was eighty-one years old and went to live with her son at Rembrandt, Man., seventy miles north of here. Mrs. Pshepiolkowska was in good health until a few years ago when her eyesight began to fail.

Her husband died forty-two years ago in Poland. She is survived by her son, Michael, eleven grandchildren and two great-grandchildren. One daughter and a son died at an early age.

Mrs. Pshepiolkowska entered the St. Boniface, Man., old folks' home in 1929. Available records do not confirm her age. Her son vouched for his mother's extreme age but the exact date of her birth is unknown.

Local Association Makes Arrangements For Lady Baden-Powell's Visit

Arrangements for the great rally of Guides and Scouts to be held in honor of the visit of the Chief Scout and Chief Guide at the Willows on April 13 were finally discussed at the meeting of the Local Association of Girl Guides at headquarters yesterday evening.

Mrs. Kyrie Symons, president, voiced an appeal for hospitality for up-island Guides and Brownies for April 13 and 14 and requested that any who are able to help in this matter will communicate with her or with Miss Stewart Williams at provincial headquarters, G 3626.

Announcement was made of the annual meeting of the Provincial Council of Girl Guides to be held in Vancouver on April 17.

Mrs. P. E. Corby was presented with a "Thanks" badge and a corsage bouquet in grateful acknowledgment of the helpful work she accomplished as secretary of the association.

Warrants were granted to Miss Ruth Adams, Tawny Owl, to Miss Eileen Frank, lieutenant, and to Mrs. Ashley Cooper, Brown Owl, and registration granted for the second Victoria West Brownie Pack.

Miss Leighton reported that she had attended the meeting of the newly-organized pack and had enrolled sixteen Brownies.

A most interesting address was given by Mrs. Sills on the Women's Workroom.

A bridge party will be held this evening at headquarters, Langley Street, at 8 o'clock, under the auspices of the Fum Victoria West Ranger Company.

Your Baby and Mine

By MYRTLE MEYER ELDRED

ENCOURAGE CHILD TO LIKE VARIETY OF FOODS

The small baby accepts the foods we put into his mouth regardless of taste. Every mother is familiar with the lip licking delight with which the infant swallows castor oil. But as baby grows he develops taste and discrimination and begins to indicate his likes and dislikes.

While it is unwise to attempt to force or wheedle a child into eating foods toward which he exhibits a violent revulsion — since his dislike may have a sound basis—it is equally unwise to allow him to become so fixed and inflexible in his likes that he will accept only a limited choice of foods. The most difficult person in the world to feed is the individual with few likes—though he is wont to call himself "easy to feed."

START BABY EARLY

New tastes and new textures are accepted by the child after he has had pleasant experiences with them. It may be easier to give a child one or two vegetables or one fruit or cereal which he likes, day after day, but when he rebels against them because of the monotony, he rebels against all similar foods.

The time to initiate variety in the child's diet is when he is young. There are mothers so cautious that once having established a successful menu they are timid about offering other foods. They continue to serve spinach and carrots, because the child has always accepted and digested spinach and carrots.

TREAT THE CHILD

There are all varieties of good foods to which the child should be treated. It is no more expensive to keep several boxes of different cereals on the shelf, a half dozen different cans of vegetables, or several varieties of fruits, than to serve over and over the same oatmeal, spinach and prunes —let us say—because the mother is confirmed in her belief in their excellence.

Our leaflet, "Fruits and Vegetables Suitable for Children," may suggest new ones to the mother. It may be had for a self-addressed, stamped envelope sent to Myrtle Meyer Eldred of the "Your Baby and Mine" department of this newspaper.

CHILD PROFITS

We can be on the alert to increase the child's enjoyment of new tastes and textures, when we realize that the small baby likes almost anything —the larger infant tends to enjoy monotony, and it is the runabout who is ready to accept new foods if we are prepared to give them to him.

The advantage of a variety of foods is that they avoid such monotony in the diet as leads the child to dislike all foods of the same kind. And the child profits by enlarging his tastes so as to find pleasure and enjoyment in the innumerable good foods which are available to him.

V.O.N. LENTEN SEWING STARTS

Members Making Garments For Needy Sick; Nurses Kept Busy

Members of the board of the Victorian Order of Nurses commenced their Lenten sewing meetings yesterday afternoon at the home of Mrs. F. B. Gregory, Craigdarroch Road. Some very welcome donations were received, and with a quantity of work already well in hand, the members hope to accomplish a lot of sewing before Easter, destined for needy patients.

At the business meeting which preceded the sewing meeting, Mrs. H. S. Beckton, the president, was in the chair, and about thirty members were present. Miss Thornley, head nurse, in her report for February, stated that the staff of the Victorian Order of Nurses attended 186 patients during the month of February. This represented 1,133 visits, of which 894 were free.

Other figures quoted in the analytical report showed that sixty-one of the visits were to cancer cases, 213 to child welfare, 207 instructive, twenty-three tubercular, forty-seven communicable diseases, forty-seven prenatal and twenty-five postnatal.

Classes were also given to teenage girls, with a total attendance of 108 girls, during the month.

Donations were gratefully acknowledged from Mrs. C. Hartley, Mrs. O'Brien, Miss Fox, Miss Angus, Mrs. Cass, Mrs. Mosher, Miss Crease, Mrs. Fowler, Pas a Pas Club, United Church; Mrs. Temple, Miss Bingham, H. T. She was the widow of Lieut.-Col. J. H. Burland, the first Canadian commissioner of the Red Cross Society in London in 1914.

Two Teeth For Quintuplets

Yvonne Dionne Only Day Behind Annette in Cutting One

Canadian Press

Callander, Ont., March 12.—Baby Yvonne took the spotlight among the Dionne quintuplets to-day, when she produced the second tooth of the famous sisters. When the nurses examined the nine-month, thirteen-day-old mites this morning, they noticed a lower central incisor had just pierced its way through the gum. Annette led the teething parade yesterday by producing the first tooth.

Oliva Dionne, the father, attended the session of the Ontario Legislature in Toronto Monday to hear the first reading of the guardianship bill concerning his famous daughters "to show the members I am not so dumb as some newspapermen made me appear in their writing," he said yesterday.

Leo Kervin, his manager, intimated the fight by the parents to regain control of the babes had not yet ended. He said they would be guided in their actions by their solicitors.

PARENTS' RIGHTS

Toronto, March 12.—Rights of the parents of the Dionne quintuplets will be respected to the full, Hon. David A. Croll, Minister of Welfare and Municipal Affairs, told the Ontario Legislature yesterday. He had been questioned by Opposition Leader George S. Henry regarding a North Bay dispatch which quoted Oliva Dionne, father of the quintuplets, as charging the parents have not free access to the babies.

Mrs. William D. Herridge charming chatelaine of the Canadian Legation at Washington, D.C.—wife of Canada's Minister to the United States and sister of the Right Hon. R. B. Bennett, Prime Minister of Canada.

"HERE'S HOW I MAKE THE OYSTER STEW★ Mrs. William D. Herridge LIKES SO WELL"

"I HAVE received many compliments on my oyster stew," cook Vincent continues, "I am sure the Nestlé's Evaporated Milk I use is one of the reasons for its success. I find, too, that Nestlé's Evaporated Milk is ideal in recipes for other things such as soups, omelettes, creamed dishes and so forth."

In mansion and in modest home, the discerning housewife uses Nestlé's because she knows that its purity and goodness never changes — its generous butter-fat content is always the same. Nestlé's Evaporated Milk is pure, creamy cow's milk, with more than half the water removed. Nothing is added! It is twice as rich as ordinary fluid milk.

Make your cooking appreciated. Decide now to give your dishes added flavour and richness by using Nestlé's. When next you 'phone your grocer ask him to include a few tins with your order.

You will be surprised at the low cost of Nestlé's. NESTLÉ'S MILK STERILIZED...EVAPORATED

AID FOR JOBLESS EX-SERVICE MEN

Ottawa Government Names Committee to Investigate Conditions

Canadian Press

Ottawa, March 13.—Unemployment in the ranks of ex-service men will be the subject of investigation by a committee which will recommend to Hon. D. M. Sutherland, Minister of Pensions and National Health, the best means of dealing with this problem. An order-in-council authorizing the inquiry was passed yesterday, following representations made by the Canadian Legion.

The committee will consist of Mr. Justice J. D. Hyndman, Ottawa; Col. O. B. Price, Montreal, and W. B. Woods, Toronto. The committee will carry out an investigation into existing facilities for provision of employment for ex-service men, for their care and maintenance while unemployed, and report with such recommendations as may be deemed advisable.

MRS. STEEVES AT SHAWNIGAN LAKE

Shawnigan Lake, March 13.—Mrs. Dorothy Steeves, member for North Vancouver, addressed a gathering of fifty last Saturday afternoon in the S.L.A.A. hall. Mrs. Steeves spoke for one hour on the inequalities of the capitalistic system and advocated a trial of the socialistic method. Education and more individual thinking by the people generally would be necessary before the perfect system of government was evolved. H. Webber acted as chairman.

Members of the Shawnigan Women's Institute were the guests of Mrs. A. Layton at the monthly meeting. Mrs. A. J. Dyson presided. Discussion arose as to replacement of the float and runway at the bathing beach, destroyed by the high water. Mr. A. Dyson and Mr. W. Brookes will be consulted. It was decided to hold a card party and dance early in April. Mrs. F. T. Elford gave a practical demonstration of home butter making. Mrs. Beeson and Miss Sherburn also contributed valuable suggestions.

At the close of business a pleasing ceremony took place when a silk bedspread was presented to Mrs. F. M. Gannon as a token of appreciation and esteem for her valuable services to the W.I. Mrs. Gannon had held the position of president for four consecutive years and never missed a meeting.

Mrs. A. Layton, the hostess, served afternoon tea, after which a social hour was spent.

SILKEN SPINDLES

by Anne Lee Buchanan

There was a rustling sound on the other side of the bushes. Both girls stiffened, motionless. But it was only a small dog that, a moment later, sniffed at their skirts and trotted on its way.

Silence again . . . and then the noise of a distant freight train. Josie said, "Gale, I'm awfully cold. Don't you think it will be all right to go now?"

"Yes—I guess so."

"If we stay back near the trees nobody will see us."

They made their way cautiously. Once voices came from across the street and the girls crept behind a building. The voices drifted out of hearing and the two girls went on. They reached the end of the block, turned into another street. There were houses here, with lighted windows.

Josie drew a sigh of relief. "Whew!" she said. "If I live to be a thousand, I'll never forget this night."

"Me either!"

"Somebody must have let it out about the meeting."

Gale did not answer. Presently, she said, "Josie—"

"Yes."

"You know that man who grabbed Steve's shoulder just as we went through the door?"

"Yes."

"I think I know who he was."

"So do I."

"You mean—?"

"Clyde Fisher." Their voices chorused the name of the mill foreman. Gale, surprised, said, "You recognized him, too! How'd you guess—?"

"It was easy. Didn't you see how his mask fell back?"

"I didn't notice that." Gale said. "It was his eyes. I knew I couldn't be mistaken about those eyes. And he was the leader. Who do you suppose the others were?"

"Oh, some of Thatcher's prize thugs, I suppose."

"Well, they broke up the meeting all right."

"They certainly did."

* * *

The girls had reached the corner where Josie should have turned. Gale said impetuously, "Don't go yet, Josie. Let's see if Steve is home. He'll tell us how it came out. I'm terribly anxious to know."

Josie agreed. She was anxious, too. The invasion of the meeting by the masked men was the most exciting thing that had happened in a long while.

Josie said, as they went on, "I suppose Thatcher'll have all our names to-morrow. Maybe he'll fire all of us."

"Maybe."

They were silent as they halted before Steve's home, silent as they went up the steps and knocked at the door.

A woman opened it—a little woman with gray hair twisted on curlers and wearing a faded bathrobe. She held the door open a few inches and asked, "Who is it?"

"It's me—Gale!" the girl said. "Is Steve here, Mrs. Meyers?"

The door opened wider. "Come in, Gale—oh, and is that Josie? Come in, both of you. No, Steve hasn't come home yet. I've been so worried. I didn't suppose the meeting would last as long as this."

The girls stepped into the house. "Why, that's strange," Gale said. "We thought surely he'd be here."

"You mean the meeting's over?"

"Yes—"

"Then where's Steve? Why doesn't he come home?" Mrs. Meyers' voice was sharply anxious. "Do you suppose anything's happened?"

There were sounds on the walk outside. Voices in the darkness. Gale turned. "I'll see who it is," she said over her shoulder, and stepped outside.

There were four men standing there, four men carrying a heavy burden—a stretcher on which was a man's body.

Gale said, "What is it?" She could see the figure on the stretcher only dimly. She went down the steps, hurried forward. "Has someone been hurt?" she asked. "Who is it?"

Before anyone answered she bent forward, peering at the figure on the stretcher. "Oh!" she cried. "It's Steve!"

CHAPTER XLVI

A tall, leather-visaged man named Jasper Wilkins told them what had happened. Doctor Carr was there now, and Mrs. Meyers was there.

Gale and Josie and the men who had carried Steve home waited outside the closed door. Jasper explained that Steve had been defending himself from the leader of the gang that had broken up the mill worker's meeting. Getting the best of the fight, too, until another of the gang, coming up from behind, had struck Steve with a club. He had fallen a moment before the room had been plunged into darkness.

Everyone had fled then, Jasper said. He himself had slipped through a rear door, stumbling against Joe Gillespie. Together they made their way to the next houses, waited with others who had gathered there.

"But what about Steve?" Gale begged.

"I'm comin' to that," Jasper went on. "We waited a while but nothin' happened. All of a sudden someone says, 'I wonder what became of Steve?'

"None of us knew. I remembered seein' a fellow smashin' Steve on the head and seein' him fall. 'Maybe he's still there,' I said. 'Maybe he didn't get out.'

"We decided we'd better go back and look. Sure enough, there he was—lyin' on the floor just where he'd fallen. He was rolled over, sort of, and there was blood on the side of his face. His eyes was shut but his heart was beatin'.

"Joe went back and got some of the others to help and we rigged up the stretcher we brought him home on. We knew he was hurt bad and one of the boys went for Doctor Carr—"

That was the story. Doctor Carr had been at work behind the closed door ever since.

Josie said, anxiously, "It's takin' a long time."

Yes, he was taking a long time—an eternity. Gale pressed her hands together until the knuckles stood out white. She saw Steve's face again as he had looked, lying on the stretcher, so white except for the ugly, dark stain. She heard his mother's tortured cry.

* * *

Josie touched Gale's arm. "Don't take it so hard, honey," she said. "Steve's goin' to be all right."

"Oh, Josie—if he shouldn't—!"

"But he will! Steve's strong."

Yes, Steve was strong. He always had been. Strong enough to help others, to put them before himself. Gale though of the night he had gone out to find Phil, and how, only the day before he had persuaded a lawyer to defend her brother. Oh, there were thousands of ways Steve had been helpful, spending himself generously to help others. Little things he had done for her father. Favors for others at the mill. Loans he had made when he could not afford them. It was endless—the chain of Steve's good deeds.

Gale whispered again, "Oh, Josie—if he shouldn't get well!"

The door of the bedroom opened then and Doctor Carr came out. Doctor Carr, whose face was usually so jolly, was not smiling.

"Doctor—?"

The physician shook his head. "Very serious," he said. "Very serious."

"But Doctor—"

"There's nothing more we can do," the physician said. "I haven't given up hope, but Mrs. Meyers should have someone with her the rest of the night."

"I'll stay," Gale said quickly. "Josie, will you stop and tell Mary where I am?"

"Of course."

The doctor gave Gale instructions. "I've told Mrs. Meyers all this," he said. "Poor woman—do what you can for her."

"Yes, doctor."

"I have another case to go to," the doctor went on. "I'll look in again on my way back."

"You might want a man handy," Jasper Wilkins said to Gale. "I'll wait in the kitchen."

"Thank you, Jasper."

* * *

When the others had gone Gale opened the bedroom door gently. Steve's mother was on her knees beside the bed, her head pressed against her son's arm. Steve's eyes were closed and he looked as though he were sleeping. There was a bandage across his forehead.

Gale said, "Mrs. Meyers, I'm going to stay with you to-night."

The woman did not look up but her hand found the girl's, clung to it. She sobbed. "Oh, Gale, they wouldn't take him from me! He's all I have—Steve—my baby!"

Her shoulders rose and fell spasmodically. Gale's fingers pressed the hand in hers. What was there to say?

Presently, Mrs. Meyers straightened, dried her eyes.

"The doctor's coming back," Gale told her.

"Yes, I know."

Gale was never to forget that vigil—the house completely silent, the room with its sparse, neat furnishings, the single light shaded so that the glare would not fall on the bed. She was never to forget Steve, lying so still against the pillows, his mother at the bedside, bent and weeping.

It has been found that a woman's system is less able to burn body fats than a man's. For this reason, a starving woman suffers more than a starving man.

S. M. CARNAGHAN TO TOUR ISLAND

British Columbia Manager of Tidewater Oil Co. Confers With Local Distributor

Stanley M. Carnaghan, newly appointed manager of the Veedol sales department of the Vancouver main branch of Macbeath, White & Dunsmuir Limited, distributors for the Tidewater Oil Company products in British Columbia, is visiting Victoria and conferring with Glen Huxtable, manager of the local branch of Macbeath, White & Dunsmuir. Mr. Carnaghan will make a tour of the entire island.

Mr. Carnaghan is well-known on Vancouver Island and on the mainland, and looks forward to meeting many of his friends here. He spent a number of years on the China coast, being the son of Capt. J. G. Carnaghan, who sailed the China seas for more than forty-three years. Mr. Carnaghan received his early education at Shanghai (Masonic) Public School, later going to England, where he trained with the Shell-Mex Limited oil company, for service in China. Some years later he joined the Tidewater Oil Company.

Through the recent establishment of a large plant in Toronto, Tidewater Oil Company products now are made in Canada and all shipments take place at that point. The Veedol motor oil is sold entirely through independent trade in Canada, and a full force of the enormous advertising campaign is placed entirely at the service of the independent dealer.

The Tidewater Oil Company was the pioneer of this continent with a refinery-sealed container in the form of a quart oil can, and record sales have been experienced in eastern Canada with this innovation.

MANSON VOICES YOUTH PLEA

What Is Million Dollars Against Loss of B.C. Youth's Vision, He Asks

A. M. Manson, K.C., M.P.P., a former Speaker of the B.C. Legislature and a former attorney-general, told members of Ward Two Liberal Association yesterday evening that as a legislator he sometimes felt he "could let loose and tear things to pieces to get something done."

"Money cannot buy back the vision of youth destroyed through enforced idleness in relief camps of our province," said Mr. Manson.

"What is a million dollars compared with the position of our young men and boys and the unwarranted destruction of their character? Maybe it is your boy. What are you going to do about it? How do you feel about it?

"And we haven't got brains enough to bring them out of it. If we have the brains, we are not using them. Sometimes I sit in the House over there and I feel helpless. I feel discouraged, feel that I could tear loose.

"The handling of the unemployment problem in British Columbia has been nothing short of criminal. I hesitate before using the word criminal. But unemployment has been grossly mishandled and mainly because of the agreement we have with the Dominion Government. If I had my way, to-morrow, I would ask the Dominion Government to appoint a commission for British Columbia and let them handle the entire unemployment question. It is a problem of far greater importance than balancing of budgets and cutting of estimates.

"Our governments and legislatures are to blame for not making use of the potential resources of the country and putting men to work."

WOULD AMENT PHARMACY ACT

Fears that the new Pharmacy Act would prevent farmers in outlying districts from securing necessary insect sprays and similar poisons from country stores were expressed at a meeting of the agricultural committee of the Legislature yesterday and an amendment to the bill to offset this was considered.

The new measure lists a number of drugs and poisons which may only be purchased at registered drug stores and others which may only be purchased from other stores when there is no drug store within a five-mile radius.

The committee's amendment would waive these provisions in regard to the articles required by the farmers.

G. E. BUCKLE DIES IN LONDON

Canadian Press

London, March 13.—George Marie Buckle, British journalist and author, died yesterday evening. He was eighty years of age.

Educated at Winchester and Oxford, he was called to the bar in 1880. He became assistant editor of The London Times in 1880, and from 1884 to 1912 was editor of the paper. Mr. Buckle was the author of "The Life of Disraeli," and of "The Letters of Queen Victoria."

MAY 6 HOLIDAY

Ottawa, March 13 (Canadian Press)—A proclamation will be posted in every post office in Canada declaring May 6, Jubilee Day, a public holiday, it was announced yesterday. The King's proclamation has been sent out from secretary of state's department.

The cover page of The National Motorist, organ of the National Motor Club of the United States, consists of a picture of a day's take of coho and spring salmon in Victoria. The pictures were supplied by the Victoria and Island Publicity Bureau.

PRE-WAR MONEY CAUSES SURPRISE

Bills Printed For Boom in 1912 Now Issued and Are Perfectly Good

Bank clerks were kept busy yesterday answering questions about twenty-three-year-old five-dollar Dominion of Canada bank bills which are being put into circulation.

The bills, which bear the picture of an old-time low horse power engine hauling a passenger train of seven cars, with a river scene in the background, are dated Ottawa, May 1, 1912.

It was explained that the Dominion Government printed sums of such paper money to meet the requirements of the pre-war boom days, when settlers were pouring in, new construction and general development on every side and real estate skyrocketing. This paper money was not needed when the slump of 1912 got under way, deflating everything.

The money has remained in the government vaults ever since. Recently, under the depression legislation which empowers the government to increase the circulation, it was decided to put this paper money into circulation, and let it get a chance to become worn out instead of destroying it and printing new bills. It was pointed out that this size of paper bills will soon be out of date, as with the start of the Bank of Canada in business to-day, the Canadian bills to be printed will be reduced to a smaller size, a size near that of the new United States bills.

A number of cases are reported here of persons who have refused to accept these crisp newly issued 1912 $5 bills, thinking there was something wrong with them, but the banks have given assurance that they are perfectly good and are officially recognized currency.

Stronger Radio Efforts Shortly

Letters to the City Council from Ottawa officials regarding the local radio situation and the possibility of linking up the city with the National hook-up were received and filed by the City Council Monday.

Alderman J. D. Hunter stated stronger action on the matter was anticipated in the future. The letters just meant Victoria was again getting the dirty end of the stick, he said.

Alderman Walter Luney noted the radio commission could not afford to link the city up with the Canadian network, although radio license levies raised about $30,000 a year from Victoria radio listeners.

The letters merely meant Vancouver was British Columbia as far as radio was concerned, Alderman Archie Wills commented.

Fulford Harbor, March 13.—Two teams of basketball players came over to Salt Spring last Friday evening from Duncan to play friendly matches with local teams, in the Institute Hall at Fulford Harbor. The first game was played by the boys' teams, Salt Spring winning 51 to 21, Bob Akreman accounting for thirty-seven, with seventeen baskets and three penalties. In the Duncan team, C. Straiger was highest with four baskets and two penalties.

In the girls' game Salt Spring again won, 24 to 6.

New Method Of Control Urged

Segregation Methods Proposed to Legislature in Combatting Disease

British Columbia should attack the problem of venereal diseases at the source instead of paying all its attention to treatment of the diseases after they had broken out, Dr. W. H. Sutherland, Liberal, Revelstoke, declared in the Legislature yesterday.

The continental system should be used, he claimed, in dealing with prostitution.

In some up-country towns there were restricted areas with periodical examination and venereal diseases were cut down remarkably. He advocated that these areas should be legalized and supervised throughout the province.

"You admit this condition is going to continue, then why not attack it at its source," he declared. In addition to the thousands of cases handled by government clinics there were many handled by private doctors of which there no records.

Dr. Sutherland's proposal was submitted after Hon. G. M. Weir, Provincial Secretary, had outlined steps being taken by the government to widen the fight against these diseases by securing the services of another expert medical men.

He mentioned that 70,000 treatments were given in Vancouver alone last year and from 17 to 23 per cent of the population of the mental hospitals were there because of the disease.

Ernest Bakewell, C.C.F., MacKenzie, advocated free treatments be arranged for in all country hospitals instead of confining the clinics to Vancouver and Victoria.

TELLS RIGHTS OF UNEMPLOYED

The Douglas Credit System maintains that all men displaced by machinery in their respective trades have a moral right to national dividends because they are the consumers and because it is a cultural inheritance which belongs to the entire race, Rev. F. W. McKinnon told members of the Douglas Credit Study Group yesterday evening.

Mr. McKinnon spoke on "Dole or Dividend." He explained how the introduction of machinery had placed men on the unemployed lists, claiming that, despite this, these men had a moral right to live. He noted Lloyd George, in his new deal platform, including the paying of national dividends to workmen so displaced.

The regular meeting of the Men's Guild of Christ Church Cathedral will be held at 7.30 p.m. in the Memorial Hall to-morrow, when F. W. Brander will give a lecture on "Jamaica," illustrated with lantern slides. The first business to be dealt with will concern a plan designed to assist two men at present unemployed, the lecture itself beginning at 8 p.m. The meeting is open to men generally.

Following the business session a pancake social was held. An hour was spent in dancing.

Mining Courses In Schools Urged

Committee Proposes Training Be Given in High and Technical Schools

The mining committee of the Legislature went on record yesterday as favoring extension of government educational work in mining.

A resolution was passed recommending the Minister of Education consider the establishment of mining courses in high schools and technical school, and the provision that persons in outlying communities be given advantage of correspondence courses.

A committee was named to discuss with the minister the chances of doing something about it this year. W. J. Asselstine, Liberal, Atlin, and R. H. Pooley, K.C., Unionist, Esquimalt, firmly supported the idea, stating many boys would get the original grounding for their future careers in training of this sort. At the present time the opportunities for education of this kind were not very great.

A BIBLICAL STORY TELLS OF A Jewish boy, when he became of age, going to his father and asking him to divide up the estate and give him his portion. The father did and the boy immediately left for a far country. It does not say the boy ever said thanks or good-bye to the father. Boys and girls, read this story. It's applicable to to-day's conditions. Pride always gets a fall. Must not tell you more now. TAX RATE SET AT COURTENAY

Courtenay, March 13.—A tax rate of 27½ mills was set by the city council in committee Monday night, being 17 mills for general debt and 10½ mills school rate. The latter rate is made possible by a credit of approximately 3 mills left by the former school board.

Municipal salaries are to be raised by $10 monthly, or advanced to the legal minimum.

Current revenue expenditures will include $6,835 for renovation of the electric plant, and $1,000 for the water department.

NOT GUILTY OF MANSLAUGHTER

Winnipeg, March 13.—John R. Morgan, Winnipeg businessman, yesterday was acquitted of a charge of manslaughter after the jury had deliberated three hours. The case was given to the jurors after a two-hour charge by Mr. Justice F. J. Montague.

The charge was laid following the death last October 3 of J. Clifford McNeill, member of the editorial staff of The Winnipeg Free Press, fatally injured when struck by an automobile allegedly driven by Morgan.

Achieved Fame As a Surgeon

Dr. H. H. Chown Performed First Stomach Operation in Canadian West

Fifty years ago an operation on the stomach, abdomen or brain was considered "sure death," states Dr. H. H. Chown of Winnipeg, famous surgeon now retired, commenting on the great strides since made in medical science.

Dr. Chown is at the Empress Hotel on his way back to Winnipeg after a tour to Australia and New Zealand.

It was Dr. Chown who, in 1889, performed in Winnipeg the first operation for cancer of the stomach in the Canadian west and which so aroused the admiration of Lord Stanley, who was then Governor-General of Canada. Lord Stanley was so interested in the case that he persuaded Dr. Chown to explain the delicate nature of the operation to him and the surgeon drew diagrams to illustrate his points. Much to his surprise, Dr. Chown next day saw an accurate account of the operation, together with cuts of his diagrams of the human anatomy, in The Manitoba Free Press, giving him credit for a remarkable operation. Frequently after that, Lord Stanley made repeated references in public utterances to the notable surgical operation.

The only anaesthetic used in those days was chloroform and the hospital facilities were crude compared with the wonderfully-equipped institutions of the present day.

ROUNDED COLLEGE

Dr. Chown first went to Winnipeg to practice fifty-five years ago, going to Manitoba from the Kingston Medical College, using the historic oxen-drawn Red River wagon as the mode of transportation.

In those pioneer days medical men had to cover a wide range of territory and in all weathers to minister to the sick. In his career Dr. Chown has ministered to patients in "palace and pig-sty." He, with other members of the profession, raised funds necessary to build and equip the first medical college in Winnipeg, a log structure. It is now governed by the University of Manitoba faculty. This medical college was later endowed by the Rockefeller Foundation, which donated $500,000 for the purpose.

Dr. Chown recalls that the endowment sum was paid in United States funds and the college thereby benefited to the extent of $75,000 on exchange. For many years he was chief surgeon at the Winnipeg General Hospital.

Since he retired, Dr. Chown has become a world traveler and he spends his winters visiting interesting parts of the globe. He has been to India, Egypt, Japan and China, South Africa, the east coast of South America and just recently returned from Australasia. He thinks Egypt the most interesting country, and Japan, the most fascinating.

CRATER HIGHWAY

Returning from Australia and New Zealand by the Monterey, Dr. Chown stopped off in the Hawaiian Islands, later sailing by the Maloio for San Francisco. He was the first visitor to drive over the newly-completed road to the crater of Haleakala, most famous extinct volcano on the island of Maui.

This mountain highway, which was officially opened to the public the day after Dr. Chown left Honolulu for this coast, signags to the summit, 10,000 feet above sea level, and is thirty-six miles long. Twenty miles of the road had previously been in use, and sightseers were forced to make the rest of the journey by horseback or on foot. Now, however, automobiles drive right to the edge of the crater, the yawning chasm of the volcanic mountain extending 2,800 feet into the bowels of the earth.

Dr. Chown, who has a habit of planning his tours ahead and reading up on the countries to be visited, proposes to go to the west coast of South America next winter and look into the history of the Aztecs. Dr. Chown has many friends in Victoria, including Dr. W. T. Barrett and Dr. Tom Miller. He also knew intimately the late Dr. A. W. Montague.

INDIA REFORM BILL

Bombay, India, March 13 (Canadian Press from Havas).—The Indian princes will accept the India Constitution Bill, it was reliably understood here to-day following a conference yesterday between the influential Maharajah of Patiala and the Earl of Willingdon, Viceroy of India. The British government is said to be willing to accept the essential safeguards formulated at the recent meeting of the Chamber of Princes.

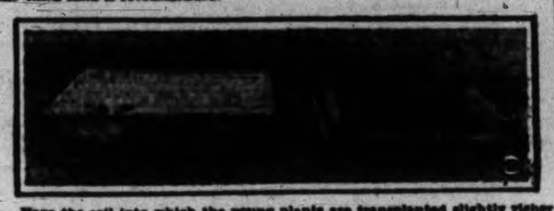
How Does Your Garden Grow?

Transplants Require Rich Soil; Specialist Tells How to Transfer Seedlings From Flats

This is the second of twelve daily articles on gardening written by experts for The Times.

By PROFESSOR C. H. NISSLEY

A loose, friable soil that will not bake is a good medium in which to grow "transplants." A mixture of one-third manure, one-third garden soil, and one-third sand is recommended.



Have the soil into which the young plants are transplanted slightly richer in plant food than the soil in which they were started as seedlings. Bone meal, added at the rate of a five-inch flower pot full to a medium-sized wheelbarrow of the prepared soil, will add the proper amount of plant food.

Set the transplants so that the crotch of the seed leaves is just above the ground. The roots are placed into holes, which are made either by the finger or by the use of "dibbles."

Press the ground around the roots thoroughly so that there will be no possibility of an air space surrounding them. Have the soil quite moist, since it is essential that the roots obtain an adequate water supply.

Water the plants immediately after transplanting, and shade them for at least twenty-four to thirty-six hours, especially if the day is warm. If the plants are set in an outdoor cold frame, put the sash in place and place salt hay, burlap, canvas or some other kind of a covering over the glass.

A cold frame will be found of great assistance in cultivating hardy vegetable plants. It offers protection from cold weather, starts plants quicker, and results in an earlier plant. It also offers a place in which to accustom early plants grown under controlled heat conditions to outdoor environment preparatory to garden transplanting.

It may be constructed at very little cost, using 1½x12-inch cypress, spruce or rough hemlock boards from fourteen to sixteen feet long, placed parallel to each other, six feet apart.

They should run east and west with a slant of from four to six inches toward the south. This will permit more sunlight to enter the frame and will provide a means of carrying off excess rain water.

The cold frame should be protected against extreme cold either through electric heating or through the use of burlap covers, which should be properly anchored.

Here is a well-laid-out vegetable garden illustrating the practice of "companion cropping." String beans have been planted between rows of tomatoes.

The string beans mature in fifty to sixty days and will be harvested by the time the tomato plants need the extra room. The bean vines will then be turned under, and the tomatoes will thus be aided by the provision of more organic matter in the soil.

Many combinations of early and late crops may be profitably subjected to this system of "companion cropping."

Next: "Vegetable Varieties."

FISHERMEN'S FEES DEBATED

License Levies Approved By Commons; Supported By A. W. Neill

Ottawa, March 13.—The House of Commons took the first step yesterday evening to legalize a tax that has been collected for three years, when amendments to the Meat and Canned Foods Act were referred to the fisheries committee.

Sponsored by Fisheries Minister Grote Stirling, the act would legalize collection of inspection fees under the act.

Opposition to the inspection fees came from A. W. Neill, Independent, Comox-Alberni, and William Duff, Liberal, Antigonish-Guysboro, N.S. The British Columbian claimed the fees worked a hardship on the salmon industry. The Nova Scotian said the department was killing the fish industry and should be cleaned out.

A complementary measure to amend the Fisheries Act to provide statutory authority for collection of fees for fishery licenses also received second reading, and was approved in committee of the whole. The license fees in the past have been collected under authority of an order-in-council.

FEES PROTESTED

Mr. Duff entered a protest against collection of any fees from fishermen, however small.

"Why should a man have to pay a fee for catching lobsters or fish any more than for growing potatoes, or cutting down trees?" asked Mr. Duff.

"This tax was imposed by a Liberal government of which the honorably member (Mr. Duff) was a supporter, and he never uttered a word of protest," said I. D. MacDougall, Conservative, Inverness, N.S.

LARGE SUMS SPENT

A defence of collection of license fees was made by Mr. Neill. He said the fees were not unreasonable and were justified as the fish were public property and the government spent large sums in protecting the fisheries.

"The fisherman does not own the fish. They belong to the people," said Mr. Neill.

"They do not belong to the people. They are in international waters," said Mr. Duff.

"Who do they belong to?" asked Mr. Neill.

"They belong to God Almighty," said Mr. Duff.

C. H. Dickie, Conservative, Nanaimo, said that without inspection and constant vigilance there would be no salmon on the Pacific Coast. Fishermen there had no objection to paying the licenses.

The bill passed through committee stage and stands for third reading.

CONSERVATIVES NAME ORGANIZERS

Canadian Press

Ottawa, March 13.—Official appointment of campaign directors for the Conservative party in the three prairie provinces was announced yesterday by J. Earl Lawson, M.P., chief Conservative organizer, who has just returned from a survey of the west.

Lieut.-Col. Ralph H. Webb, former mayor of Winnipeg, was named campaign director for Manitoba with headquarters at Winnipeg.

Frank W. Turnbull, K.C., Regina member of the House of Commons, will direct the Conservative election campaign in Saskatchewan. His offices will be in Regina and Saskatoon.

Reuben W. Ward, bakery executive, will be director for Alberta, with offices at Calgary and Edmonton.

MRS. CAMPBELL FOUND GUILTY

Jury Gives Verdict in Relief Office Window-smashing Case

Mrs. Ardah Campbell was found guilty by the Assize Court jury of smashing the windows of the civic relief office on January 18, but the jury added a recommendation that "in view of conditions disclosed," the court should exercise mercy.

The jury deserted the case for fifty-three minutes and came in exactly at 5 o'clock Tuesday afternoon.

Mrs. Campbell was not surprised at the verdict, as she had not fought the case on a denial of the act itself, but had sought only to bring to the public consciousness a realization of relief conditions.

Mr. Justice Robertson has deferred sentencing Mrs. Campbell until the end of the assizes.

"In a humble, ignorant way, I have placed my case before you—I am not asking sympathy, I am asking justice," Mrs. Campbell said in her address to the jury.

"Prison looks good to wives of unemployed in trying to keep homes together against the callousness of relief officers," she commented.

Dealing with relief management, Mrs. Campbell said that only when indigent people went with a doctor's certificate could they get additional relief, otherwise their families had to go cold and hungry. She urged a public investigation into the whole relief administration, in view of what had been disclosed.

M. B. Jackson, counsel for the prosecution, did not address the jury.

Mr. Justice Robertson analyzed the case in detail and from every angle. He pointed out the verdict must be either guilty or not guilty, as there was no other possible verdict in the case.

Sidney Oliver was one of the late witnesses called by Mrs. Campbell. He testified about the Campbell's occupancy of their other house at 3036 Stanley Avenue from which they moved just before the cold spell.

The judge, however, ordered a halt to such evidence. When Mrs. Campbell argued that it had every bearing on the case, the judge allowed Mr. Oliver to tell about the water service being turned off. He explained that there had been a water bill of $2.60 owing when the Campbells left the Stanley Avenue house, but he took the matter up and when it was found they were a relief case the bill of $2.60 was wiped out on the Stanley Avenue house and the city was ready to turn on the water for the Fuul Bay Road house.

Among the other witnesses called and who testified along similar lines were Relief Inspector Peter Brogan, Frank Landsberg, Mary Cassia, Harrison Allman, City Relief Officer Ernest George Snowden and Edgar W. Griffith.

PROSECUTION WITNESSES

For the prosecution, A. B. Strawford, a plumber, testified that in going to his shop just behind the relief office, he had seen Mrs. Campbell breaking the windows. He was positive of her identification.

Henry Aitkens, relief office janitor, testified he had followed the woman who had broken the windows as far as Woolworth's. Then Frank Smedley, also of the relief office, had come along and he took up the trail, following the woman until she boarded a street car at Fort Street, at the Owl Drug corner. Mr. Smedley said he identified Mrs. Campbell as the woman he had followed.

Constable Louis Callan testified about following the street car on which Mrs. Campbell was said arresting her.

Others called by the prosecution were: John C. Briggs, Major M. Kirkpatrick-Crockett, David Tripp and Mr. Snowden.

Major Kirkpatrick-Crockett recalled to the stand to-day, testified it cost the city $450 to replace the smashed windows.

The jury hearing the case consisted of: Charles A. Field (foreman), Matthew W. Jamieson, Robert H. Hincocks, Raymond Wrigley, Herbert Mottished, Fred. Buchbrook, William H. Ryan, Edward Floyd, Archibald Biddle, Edward Cooper, Daniel Knight and Charles R. B. Bagshawe.

SAYS NEW RULES MUST BE OBEYED

Ottawa, March 13.—Rigid enforcement of the penal sections of the government's reform measures was promised yesterday by Hon. Wesley Gordon, Minister of Labor. He was addressing a delegation of the Confederation of Catholic Laborers of Canada.

"If thre is to be any laxity on behalf of persons or firms which break these laws, the effectiveness of these measures would not only be imperilled; they would be destroyed," he said.

NEGRO LYNCHED IN MISSISSIPPI

Slayden, Miss., March 13.—Ab Young, a negro, was hanged to an oak tree in a schoolyard three miles east of here yesterday afternoon by a mob of about fifty white men.

The negro, who had been sought in connection with the shooting to death last Saturday night of Harry Mackie, forty-five, state highway worker, went to his death with a hymn on his lips.

Fine Orchestra With Road Show

Artie Gleason, one of the most versatile musicians in the United States, will appear in Victoria this week-end with the revue "Rhapsody in Rhythm," which will be presented at the Empire Theatre on Friday and Saturday. This is a Wilbur Cushman and comes to Victoria highly recommended after a successful tour across the continent from New York.

Mr. Gleason is the conductor of the orchestra known in the east as the "Rhythm Cadets." Besides being the orchestra leader, Mr. Gleason plays twenty-two different instruments himself. This band will provide the musical background for the entire programme, and besides accompanying the various songs and dances will be featured in several special numbers.

A unique act will be that provided by Cropely and Violet in rope spinning and adagio. This act is a most difficult one, and one that has made audiences in other parts of the continent gasp with amazement.

One of the finest comedy acts on the programme will be provided by Bobby and King.

CAPITOL THEATRE

In his latest starring vehicle, "The Iron Duke," the Gaumont British historical drama in which he portrays Wellington, now playing at the Capitol Theatre, George Arliss frequently stresses the Duke' satirical trend, notably in his scenes with the antagonistic Duchess of Angouleme, played by Gladys Cooper. This ironical vein can also be traced in Wellington's correspondence.

This outstanding Arliss vehicle has come to local picture fans following its initial remarkable ovation in London where its world premiere was graced by the presence of the Prince of Wales, a mark of exceptional distinction; and its later notable American debut at the Radio City Music Hall in New York City.

PLAYHOUSE THEATRE

Rhea Mitchell, former leading lady, after an absence of five years from the stage and screen forced by injuries received in a fall, re-enters motion pictures with a part in Paramount's "Behold My Wife." Starring Sylvia Sidney and Gene Raymond, this picture is now at the Playhouse Theatre. Rhea Mitchell is cast in the role of a newspaper woman. Her last stage appearance was in a feminine lead opposite Edward Everett Horton.

COLUMBIA THEATRE

Albertina Rasch, who staged the elaborate dance sequence in the Warner Brothers' production of "Madame Du Barry," now showing at the Columbia Theatre, was formerly one of the world's greatest ballerinas. She made joint concert tours with both the late Sarah Bernardt and Geraldine Farrar. Dolores Del Rio has the role of Du Barry in the picture, which is a story of the loves of King Louis XV's favorite.

DOMINION THEATRE

Carl Brisson and Mary Ellis, Paramount's two premier singing stars, are brought together in the leading romantic roles of "All the King's Horses," a blend of melody, comedy and romance, now at the Dominion Theatre.

Miss Ellis, long one of the foremost singing and dramatic stars of the London and New York stages, makes her bow to the American film public in "All the King's Horses." Brisson made his film debut in Paramount's "Murder at the Vanities."

Assisted by a cast that includes Edward Everett Horton, Katherine DeMille and Eugene Pallette, these two enact the story of a king and queen whose public life interferes with their romance.

LOG EXPORTS ARE DEFENDED

B.C. Loggers' Association Views Presented to Forestry Committee

The forestry committee of the Legislature this morning heard the other side of the raw log export question.

After listening to numerous arguments as to why export of logs should be completely halted in order to keep the work of manufacturing the lumber in the province, the members this morning received a brief from Fred B. Brown, chairman of the B.C. Loggers' Association, explaining the reason for the export.

Mr. Brown said raw log exports had dropped steadily since 1927, except for the years 1931 and 1933, and that the amount shipped last year was 184,000,000 feet, against 208,000,000 feet the previous year.

No domestic mills had been subjected to shortage of logs because of the export which, he claimed, helped to stabilize log prices and assisted the industry to dispose of its surplus.

The proportion of logs exported was less than 9 per cent of the total production in the Vancouver forest district, he said. The bulk were from crown-granted lands not subject to provincial control.

Strict control had been exercised by the province in exports from licensed and leased areas. It was only permitted when there was a surplus or the logs were unsuitable for domestic manufacture. There was already an export tax on such logs over and above the royalties.

An embargo on export would not benefit the B.C. industry, he claimed, because the markets where they were sold could get all they wanted from Washington and Oregon if B.C. did not supply them.

He pointed out that all log exports now are subject to approval by the export advisory committee and through this body directly by the government. He thought this policy had worked out quite satisfactorily and to change it would be decidedly injurious to the lumber interests and the public generally.

Explains Science Of Paint-making

The importance of laboratory work in the science of paint-making was stressed yesterday evening by Angus McIntyre, chief chemist of the British America Paint Company, speaking before the Science Club of Victoria College.

The lecture was illustrated with a series of interesting experiments and demonstrations. At the conclusion of the talk a period was set aside for general discussion and questions.

The speaker was introduced by John Garrett, president of the club, who also moved a vote of thanks.

IS LAID TO REST

Many sorrowing friends and relatives were present at the funeral of Mrs. E. Jean Macrae held yesterday afternoon, Rev. Dr. W. G. Wilson conducting the service. The hymns sung were "Abide With Me" and "Peace, Perfect Peace." The casket and hearse were covered with beautiful floral offerings. The following acted as pallbearers: Alexander Walker, E. B. Stoney, Bernard O'Neill, J. T. Mann and E. Irvine. The remains were laid at rest in Royal Oak Burial Park.

NATIVE SONS TO GATHER IN APRIL

Hall last Monday evening. Victoria delegates to the convention will be appointed at the next monthly meeting, to be held April 8.

The deplorable condition of beaches around the city was discussed by the members at the meeting. They declared themselves ready to take an active part in any programme for the cleaning up of the waterfront.

The party planned for March 22, to be held in the Craigflower Museum, has been postponed until April 22, it was announced.

E. D. Barrow Addresses Annual Banquet; E. Raper Chosen President

With an address by E. D. Barrow, M.P.P. for Chilliwack, on the Marketing Act, and election of officers for the ensuing year, the annual banquet of the Vancouver Island South Cow Testing Association was held in the Dominion Hotel, yesterday evening.

E. Raper was elected president of the association, and G. P. Weir was chosen vice-president. Ralph Rendle was returned as secretary, and J. E. K. Burnett, George Austin, Robert Mercer, R. Charles Fisher, C. H. Williams and E. W. Barkinshaw were appointed directors. J. W. Filmer was named auditor.

Mr. Barrow explained the functioning of the different marketing schemes as they operated in England and Scotland, with particular reference to those covering milk. They were a great benefit to the producers, he declared, and something in the same nature could easily be adopted here.

The speaker deviated a moment from dairy topics to show the inadvisability of depending upon the British Isles as a surplus market for eggs. It was all right to ship dressed poultry, he stated, but in the Old Country there were some 65,000,000 chickens, which came into the peak of production at about the same time as the birds in the province.

For that reason egg producers should find a local market for their surplus, or else they would receive starvation prices.

Mr. Barrow emphasized the necessity of strict control in any marketing scheme. During his speech he paid a high tribute to the work done by the Vancouver Island Cow Testing Association.

J. B. Munro, deputy Minister of Agriculture, gave an interesting address, in which he mentioned that British Columbia stood out as the leading province in Canada as far as milk production per cow was concerned.

Copies of the government publication, "Fourth List of Dairy Sires," listing tested bulls and performance of their progeny, were handed out to all present.

In addition to community singing, Bert Lilley entertained with several after-dinner stories and songs.

Patrick Philip, former provincial deputy minister of public works, is in the city on a business trip from Vancouver. He is at the Empress Hotel.

Scotland And The Wide World

Burns Club Hears Address on "The Great Internationalist"

Scotland's influence upon the course of civilization through the personal associations of her people, her literature and the products of her science and invention, was the subject of an address to the members of the Burns Club yesterday evening by B. C. Nicholas, editor of The Victoria Daily Times.

The speaker described the Scot as a great internationalist under many headings. He was an admirable settler who readily adjusted himself to the conditions of other countries where he was highly regarded, while at the same time he preserved an unreserved devotion to the land of his birth. Scotsmen who migrated to foreign countries could form Burns Clubs, St. Andrew's and Caledonian Societies, and otherwise extoll the land of their birth, yet nowhere did these manifestations arouse antagonism. The fact that they were everywhere taken for granted emphasized the internationalism of the Scottish character.

Mr. Nicholas traced the influence of Scotsmen in numerous channels throughout the world, reviewing their record in exploration, colonization, public and professional life and industry. He devoted special attention to their contributions to the progress of this continent, notably through the association of the Hudson's Bay Company and the Northwest Company with Canadian exploration and settlement, the part played by Scotsmen in fashioning Canadian Confederation, the construction of the Canadian Pacific Railroad, the winning of constitutional government and the development of Canada's educational system. He also reviewed the achievements of eminent sons and daughters of Scotland in the United States from the signing of the Declaration of Independence and the drafting of the constitution to the present time.

The speaker enumerated some of the products of Scottish inventors and scientists which were now in world-wide use, particularly in agriculture, engineering, and electrical research, mentioning especially such men as Watt, Murdock, Kelvin, McAdam, Telford, Brewster, Bell, Small, Meickle, Morrison, and great shipping operators such as the Allans, Weir, Henderson, the Cunards, all of whom were important international factors. The record, he felt, justified his contention that the Scot was indeed a great internationalist.

G. C. Grant acted as chairman of the meeting in the absence of W. A. Jameson, president. Enjoyable contributions to the programme were given by Miss Ora Jealouse, who sang three numbers most acceptably; Miss Adeline Grant, who cleverly gave a Highland dance and Irish jig; P. J. Mitchell, who sang with fine dramatic effect "Archibald Douglas," and Pipe Major Donald Cameron, who played "Mallorca," a composition by the Prince of Wales. Miss Smith, the club's accompanist, admirably presided at the piano.

Edward D. Murphy Dies in Jubilee

At the Jubilee Hospital this morning, the death occurred of Edward Dillon Murphy, 3073 Albina Street, aged sixty-one years. He was born in Nova Scotia and came to Victoria in 1908, and was for a number of years in the employ of the B.C. Electric Railway Co. on its interurban line.

Mr. Murphy is survived by two sons, Arthur P., in Victoria, and Eugene, in Alberni; one brother, Joseph Murphy, Saanich, and three brothers in Edmonton.

Funeral services will be held at Hayward's, B.C. Funeral Chapel on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Interment will be in the family plot in Ross Bay Cemetery.

MANY ATTEND FUNERAL

The funeral of Miss Mary Kipling, who passed away at her home, 942 Cloverdale Avenue on March 8, took place yesterday afternoon, Adjutant Ede officiating. Relatives and many friends attended the service, and the casket was surrounded by many beautiful flowers. The hymns sung were "Abide With Me" and "Nearer, My God, to Thee." Mrs. S. M. Morton rendered the solo, "Some Day the Silver Cord Will Break." The following acted as pallbearers: H. A. Farmer, P. Pearson, W. Rankin, J. W. Knight Jr., J. W. Knight Sr. and A. Scroggs, the committal service and interment, the committal service and interment was in the family plot at Ross Bay Cemetery.

As Vernon Bartlett, diplomatic correspondent of The London News-Chronicle, will be unable to address any further meetings during his brief stay in Victoria, the Women's Canadian Club is extending an invitation to the Canadian Club to attend their meeting on Friday afternoon at 2.45 o'clock at the Empress Hotel, when he will speak on "European Scene."

Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Bonavia were hosts at a house-meeting held on Tuesday under the auspices of the local Anti-Vivisection Society. The speaker, W. B. Pease, took for his subject "Fear and Moral Force." Vivisectors and their cohorts, it was alleged, had become powerful through creating fear of disease in the minds of the people. Power so gained is an evil influence and must be resisted and destroyed, and fear is simply cowardice. Great damage, he said, had been done to the art of healing by the vivisectors' methods, but moral force was a power which, allowed to grow, would become an overwhelming influence and its progress could not be hindered. The futility of using animals for cancer research was particularly commented upon. Essential reforms, said the speaker, take long periods of time to achieve their aims and only achieve them when moral force is exercised. In amplification of this statement Mr. Pease pointed to the abolition of slavery and vote by ballot as necessary reforms instituted by moral compulsion, and he exhorted those present to cast out all fear and exercise their rights and their powers. By so doing, the crime of vivisection would be abolished. After the serving of refreshments, Mrs. A. W. Stokes entertained those present with several vocal solos, Mrs. G. Marshall acting as accompanist.

FIFTH OF LEVY NOW COLLECTED

Prepaid Taxes to Date Have Brought $384,923 to City's Coffers This Year

At the close of collections yesterday evening, prepaid taxes had brought into the city a total of $384,923 since the beginning of the year.

This amount is approximately one-fifth of the entire levy set last year and is well ahead of the record year, 1932.

Last year, at the corresponding date, only $309,580 had been collected, while in 1933, the year of records, the amount stood at $355,970.

Later in the month a considerable increase is expected as property owners in the city avail themselves of the special interest allowance granted on advance 1935 tax payments up to the date the taxes fall due.

The collections to date have justified the city in its stand to give the allowance at the rate of 5 per cent per annum from the date of payment until the actual date when the taxes fall due.

During the last three months of the year, those who have not met their taxes will be charged an ascending penalty on their delinquencies.

P.G.E. PROBE MOVES AHEAD

Committee Calls For Full Documents on Orders and Reports of Line

The railways committee of the Legislature made the first step to-day in an investigation of charges by Harold Winch, C.C.F., Vancouver East, to the effect that the P.G.E. Railway was tied up too long during the January storms.

At the request of Mr. Winch, the committee decided to secure copies of all train sheets, train orders, telegraph and telephone messages, time tables and rules dealing with operation of the line from January 16 to February 4.

After perusing these documents, Mr. Winch said, he will have the necessary information on what witnesses he should call. Without them he would have to call all those connected with the operation of the line.

He refused to give the committee names of any witnesses unless he had an assurance they would be in no way jeopardized for testifying. The committee, it was explained, could not give assurances of this kind, but they would be protected by the railway brotherhood.

Mr. Winch said he had no quarrel with the rank and file of the P.G.E. crews, but thought the tie-up had not been handled properly and was not legitimate.

"My information comes indirectly from railroad men and is to the effect the tie-up was not legitimate," he said.

"That sounds silly," said George Murray, Liberal, Lillooet.

"Have you any knowledge of your own?" asked D. M. MacKay, Liberal, Cariboo, the committee chairman.

"I've never been on the line in my life," said Mr. Winch.

He then submitted a list of the records he required.

"Apparently the trouble is," said Mr. Murray, "you made these charges in the Legislature without any evidence to back them up and now you are trying to prove them. You just heard it on the street and you can't name any witnesses to substantiate it."

"That's not it," said Mr. Winch. "I don't want to jeopardize any of the crews. If you think I'm wrong, produce these documents and if it should turn out I'm wrong I'll admit it."

"And you're asking for an inquiry into the worst storm the line had experienced in its history. There were twenty-three feet of snow in some places," said Mr. Murray.

C. H. Tupper, Liberal, Similkameen, a director of the railway, stated the executive desired to furnish the committee with every piece of information available.

Clifford Dawley Accuses Policeman of Having Grudge Against Him

Allegations that Constable Thomas Stevenson of the city police force had a personal dislike for him were made by Clifford Dawley in conducting his own cross-examination of the constable in the Assize Court this morning. Dawley is appearing before Mr. Justice Robertson, charged with breaking and entering the Playhouse Candy Shop.

Dawley was warned by the court to keep to questions after he had made the statements from the prisoner's box during cross-examination.

Constable Stevenson was questioned regarding the identification of a grey coat which he stated the prisoner was wearing on the early morning of January 18 when he had chased him along Yates and Blanshard Streets, firing shots at him.

SIMILAR COATS

He produced another grey coat, striped with black and, putting it on asked the constable what difference there was between it and the coat produced by the prosecution.

"That is a form-fitting coat and the other one was loose fitting," the constable said.

"Do you mean to say that you noticed that in the excitement of chasing three men along Blanshard Street and firing at them, Mr. Stevenson?" asked Dawley.

"Yes," was the reply.

"You are very observant, Mr. Stevenson and would make a good detective," said Dawley.

Dawley then examined witness on statements he made to the effect that he had known the prisoner for several years, which assisted him in recognizing him on the morning of January 18.

"You and a sergeant came to me and a friend one evening two years ago and made certain accusations against us, and you kicked me, didn't you?" asked Dawley.

"No," replied Constable Stevenson, telling the court of an incident two years ago when he and another constable were summoned to stop a disturbance in a chop suey house in Chinatown, where the accused and another man were.

"Since you've known me you've had a personal dislike and prejudice against me, why, I don't know," said Dawley.

The evidence this morning was a repetition of that given in the preliminary hearing.

M. B. Jackson is conducting the prosecution.

HITS BEAUTICIANS WHO CUT PRICES

Mrs. Enright Presents to Premier Petition Against Desecration of Profession

Premier Pattullo and members of his cabinet to-day learned what some women members of the hair-dressing profession think of some beauticians who cut prices.

They were told by Mrs. D. Enright of Vancouver, chairman of the board of examiners of the Hairdressers' Association of B.C.

What she told them, in effect, was that there ought to be a cast-iron law against price-cutting in the art of making women more beautiful.

Mrs. Enright came over with the big delegation of retail merchants, and at the conclusion of the interview with the cabinet in the executive chamber, she arose and asked leave to present a petition of 600 B.C. hairdressers who set out that they were "all feeling the effects of cut prices." Mrs. Enright said they all hoped the amendments to the Hairdressers Act now before the Legislature would be passed by the members, so the members of the profession could earn a fair profit and decent living. She denounced the beautician establishments which attracted customers by advertising cut rates in the newspapers.

The Premier said the amendments to the bill were before the House and the facts in the petition were already being given consideration by the members.

FORMER DUNCAN NURSE PASSES

Funeral services were held in Vancouver to-day for Mrs. Anne Mathieson, R.N., former matron of the King's Daughters' Hospital at Duncan, who passed away suddenly in the mainland city on Saturday. Rev. Major C. C. Owen conducted the services, and interment was in the Returned Soldiers' plot in Mountain View Cemetery.

Mrs. Mathieson served overseas during the Great War as a member of the Queen Alexandra Imperial Nursing service. She came to Vancouver after the war and held important staff posts in several hospitals throughout the province.

Last Tribute To Wallace Tergeson

An unusually large congregation assembled yesterday to pay a last tribute of respect to Wallace Tergeson, well-known citizen and sportsman, who passed away last Saturday at the Jubilee Hospital.

Revg T. A. Jansen conducted the impressive service, during which the congregational hymn sung was "Lead, Kindly Light." Mrs. S. M. Morton rendered the solo "Some Day We'll Understand." The numerous beautiful floral designs bore testimony to the popularity of Mr. Tergeson.

The following acted as pallbearers: T. Dickenson, E. H. Butler, A. Fetch, S. M. Scouler, T. W. MacPherson and F. Smith. The remains were laid at rest in the Royal Oak Burial Park.

FUNERAL TO BE PRIVATE

Private funeral services will be held to-morrow afternoon at 2 o'clock at Hayward's B.C. Funeral Chapel for Charles Muir, who passed away yesterday at the Jubilee Hospital. It is requested that no flowers be sent.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS IN THE B.C. LEGISLATURE

Herbert Anscomb, Victoria, asked the Minister of Public Works the following questions:

1. Was any work done on the Cranbrook-Kimberley Road during the year 1934?

2. If so, what did this work consist of?

3. What was the mileage and total cost of such work, if any?

Hon. P. M. MacPherson replied as follows:

"1. Yes.

"2 and 3. Three miles new construction and reconstruction, $2,250 relief-work and $5,454 ordinary improvement; 19.7 miles general maintenance, $1,200, and $2,200 relief-work; 4.55 miles bituminous surfacing (see Votes and Proceedings No. 18, 1935 Session, page 4); 0.5 mile oiling, $307.37."

Rev. Robert Connell asked the Minister of Agriculture the following questions:

1. Has the government official knowledge of the proposed plan of the Child Emigration Society of Great Britain to establish a farm school, to be known as the Fairbridge Farm School, in the vicinity of Cowichan Station, with the object of training boys and girls for farm life in Canada?

2. If yes, what is the government's attitude?

Hon. K. C. MacDonald replied as follows:

"1. Yes.

2. It is understood that the proposed school is similar to the Fairbridge Farm School that was established many years ago in western Australia with capital from Great Britain. No concession have been asked for or granted by the government of this province. The property will be subject to assessment and taxation in the same manner as property in all other rural districts. In addition to several other buildings, there will be a school on the premises operated under the provisions of the 'Public Schools Act,' subject to the same regulations and following the same curriculum during school-hours as all other rural schools. The teachers will be selected from those in this province holding certificates from the Department of Education."

Jack Price, Vancouver East, asked the Minister of Finance the following questions:

1. What amount of taxes on farm lands are in arrears at latest available date?

2. What amount of income taxes are in arrears at latest available date?

Hon. John Hart replied as follows:

"1. $347,538.42. Taxes on farm lands under 'Public Schools Act,' etc., are not segregated from other real property.

2. $754,705.32."

R. B. Swailes, C.C.F., Delta, asked the Minister of Lands the following questions:

1. Was any furniture or carpets purchased for the offices of the Minister of Lands since November, 1933?

2. If yes, what articles were purchased, and what was the cost of each article?

Hon. A. Wells Gray replied as follows:

"1. Yes.

"2. One Underwood typewriter, $151.75; carpet, $477.23; under-felt $35.20; pedestals, $23.38."

Mrs. D. G. Steeves, North Vancouver, asked the Attorney-general the following questions:

1. What was the cost of beer licences when this government took office?

2. Has the cost of beer licences been decreased since this government took office?

3. If yes, what has been the amount of the decrease?

Hon. G. M. Sloan replied as follows:

"1. Fees for beer licences were computed in accordance with the following schedule on the estimated profit, based on the volume of sales to the license during the twelve months ending September 30 immediately preceding. Where two or more beer licences are located in the same city, town or village, then the average profit was taken on which to base the fees for beer licences for that particular city, town or village.

Estimated Profit.	Fee.
Up to $3,000.00	$ 150.00
$3,001.00 to $5,000.00	250.00
$5,001.00 to $7,500.00	350.00
$7,501.00 to $10,000.00.	500.00
$10,001.00 to $15,000.00	750.00
$15,001.00 and up	$1,000.00

"2. The method of taking the average profit as a basis on which to compute fees, as mentioned in No. 1, was not deemed to be just and equitable, more particularly where the volume of sales was small. In certain cities a licensee with double the volume of business was charged the same fee as a licensee doing a small volume of business. A change in the method of computation of fees was decided upon and became effective with beer licences issued for the year 1934.

"3. Commencing with the issuance of licences for the year 1934, the method of computing fees is on the basis of a fixed minimum fee which is determined by the volume of business in respect of the premises for which application for beer licence is made during the twelve months ending September 30 immediately preceding, in accordance with the schedule set out hereunder, and to which is added the equivalent of 50 cents per barrel of approximately twenty-five imperial gallons of draught beer and 25c. per barrel or six dozen quarts purchased during the period hereinbefore mentioned.

Value of Beer purchased.	Fixed Minimum Fee.
$3,000.000 and under	$ 75.00
$3,001.00 to $6,000.00	100.00
$6,001.00 and over	150.00

City police to-day investigated a report from H. S. Maguire that an attempt had been made to enter his drug store, by jimmying a rear window, at 414 Craigflower Road.

Glasses Are Ugly

Office, 1241 BROAD STREET, E 9621

Glasses as an item of personal adornment have always been and will continue to be a positive failure. Those unfortunate individuals who require to wear glasses to correct visual errors and to minimize the tell-tale appearance of furrowed brow, crow's feet and wrinkles which are the direct result of uncorrected eyestrain may take some cheer out of the fact that optical manufacturers have developed quite inconspicuous rimless mountings which when properly fitted are the least obtrusive.

Stylists of authority agree that the old-fashioned shell spectacles are as incorrect as a bathing suit at a formal dinner. They claim Harold Lloyd wore them to look funny and that every one who wears them looks funny. So that as it may the function of an optometrist is not to wave a magic wand and transform his patients into things of beauty but to discover and correct visual disturbances by prescribing the proper lenses, thereby contributing to the comfort, happiness and efficiency of those who seek his help.

Boston Bruins Take Strangle Hold On Division Lead In N.H.L.

THE SPORTS MIRROR

PROFESSIONAL HOCKEY will invade England and continental Europe soon after the Stanley Cup games are played. Armand Vincent, ace promoter of Montreal, is in Paris arranging a five-weeks' tour consisting of eight games to be played in London, Paris, Berlin and Milan, Italy. The Montreal Canadiens, oldest team in the National League, will play two games in each of those cities with either the New York Rangers or the Boston Bruins furnishing the opposition. Europe is amateur-conscious as far as hockey is concerned. In order to fill out teams at least twenty Canadians are now playing with teams representing London, Paris and Berlin. Wayne Grant is teaching Czechoslovakians the game in Prague and the fans are going for it in a big way.

Europe is ripe for professional hockey, according to Vincent. He points out that the Winnipeg Monarchs, an amateur team, crossed the big pond and played the Frances Valonts in Paris and attracted 20,000 fans to the game. A greater attendance saw the Monarchs play a team composed of all-stars of England at Wembley Stadium. At Milan ropes were stretched across the street leading to the auditorium to prevent the mob from tearing down the gates trying to get in.

* * *

Leo Dandurand, owner of the Montreal Canadiens, is behind Vincent in this project and guarantees to take over the entire team and substitutes. It is no to be a barn-storming tour of stars from the various clubs. The full complement of Canadiens, including Aurel Jolia, a Swiss; Peter Lepine, a French-Canadian; Armand Mondou, Montreal; Wildor Larochelle, and the brothers, Peter and Sylvio Mantha, will make the trip.

* * *

Dandurand has the final say as to the opponents for his team. He is hopeful of getting the Rangers. If they are not available it will probably be the Bruins. He would be tickled silly if he could secure the winner of the Stanley Cup play-offs, for then he would have the professional champions of the world.

* * *

Vincent has a deeper purpose in mind other than to show two pro teams in exhibition games. He intends forming a league which in time will produce players capable of challenging the winner of the Stanley Cup so that the winner will be the undoubted champions of the world. Where are the players to come from? Simple enough, according to Vincent. He claims the minor leagues are full of players ready to step up into the higher brackets. They are to a certain extent controlled by the majors, but as there is no room for them now they have to play for a mere $40 or $50 a week. They would jump at a chance to go overseas at better wages and the status of a regular and the opportunity to get into an international series.

Dr. James Naismith, who, back in the so-called gay nineties, hung a peach basket on the running track of the Springfield, Mass., Y.M.C.A gymnasium, and thus invented the game of basketball, sticks close to the University of Kansas, where he is a professor. But if he wandered far afield and looked in on the game as now played from Atlantic to Pacific, and all over the world as well, he hardly would recognize his brain child.

The fundamentals are still the same everywhere. The game is played with a blown-up round ball and the idea is to toss it through a hoop. But hardly two coaches teaches it alike, or two teams play it alike, or two officials officiate it alike.

* * *

From many points in America have risen shrill protests at the way it is being played. Teams going from one section to another to play have found themselves bewildered by a different set of rules and the rule book, in effect, has been discarded. For every rule that is pertinent to the actual playing of the game there is an interpretation, and each section has adopted its own.

The most striking departure from practiced the rule book has been practiced this season in the southern division of the Pacific Coast Conference. The code says that after every score, play is resumed with a centre toss-up. The coast group has discarded the centre toss.

The centre tap long has been attacked, and the rules committee in the United States is ready to discard it if it discovers that the basketball playing and observing public wishes it so. But the centre tap is only incidental in the present furor over basketball. What is a foul, and what is not? That is the sorest point.

The rules committee has laboured to keep basketball an entertaining fast-moving game. It has hedged about its rules. Certain provisions are designed to keep it free from football tactics and guerilla warfare. But the committee has failed because of the modern craze for interpretations.

* * *

Uniformity of interpretations as well as rules is vital. Recently, Floyd A. Rowe, Cleveland, a member of the United States committee, was named head of a research committee to study the varying interpretations with the hope of bringing this uniformity.

"We have to teach coaches and conferences to stop monkeying with the rules," says Rowe. "They are only bringing chaos into the game. We have tried to eliminate fouls because nobody wants the game to develop into a parade from foul line to foul line. But nothing we can do will succeed unless everybody understands clearly what is a foul and what is not."

Rowe has instituted experiments in some of the Cleveland high schools on rules changes and will check other experiments made throughout the country, notably at the University of Kansas by Dr. Forrest C. Allen.

He will present this information to the United States committee for consideration at its spring meeting.

Are Practically Certain To Meet Leafs For Title

Whip New York Americans 4 to 1 to Take Five-point Lead on Chicago Hawks

RANGERS BEATEN BY CANADIENS

By A. E. FULFORD
Canadian Press Staff Writer

Pointing to a big-gate series with Toronto Leafs that would fill their pockets with playoff money, Boston Bruins were away out on top in the National Hockey League's American division to-day. They entered the last week of the schedule five points up on Chicago Black Hawks, with three games to play.

With a thought in their minds of the summer holiday money an N.H.L. series with Leafs would give them, Bruins went through the motions smartly enough at Boston yesterday evening to defeat New York Americans 4 to 1 in a listless game.

If they can do that again tomorrow when they clash with Joe Simpson's team in New York, they will make it almost impossible for Hawks to catch them. Winning all their remaining four games, Chicago can make their total fifty-nine points. A victory to-morrow would give Bruins fifty-eight with two games more to work on.

GIVE GOALIE BREAK

Their play-off position secure, Leafs set out at Montreal yesterday evening to give George Hainsworth, their goalie, a benefit and it worked. The idea was to enable Hainsworth to score his eighth shutout of the season and tie Lorne Chabot, Chicago, and Tiny Thompson, Boston.

They prevented Maroons from scoring even without Charlie Conacher and Red Horner, who were not up to par and were left in Toronto. Hec Kilrea won the 1 to 0 game for Leafs in the second period, picking up a pass from Bill Thoms after Harvey Jackson had started the play. Hainsworth had to stop only seventeen shots, while Alex Connell, in the other goal, blocked twenty-two.

New Yorkers saw a preview of the probable meeting of Canadiens and Rangers in the play-offs, the Montrealers winning 4 to 3 after Rangers had come from behind twice to tie the score.

St. Louis Eagles set something of a record when they scored the tieing and winning goals in three seconds at St. Louis to defeat Detroit Red Wings, 3 to 2.

Nels Stewart and Red Beattie accounted for all the Bruin scoring in the game at Boston, both getting two goals. Stewart also had an assist. Old Bill Brydge saved Americans from a shutout with his second period goal.

PULLS HIS GOALIE

Lester Patrick gave the customers in New York a thrill when he pulled Davie Kerr out of the nets in the final minute and sent six forwards up the ice to try for the tieing goal. They did not get it, but neither did the Habitants score when the goal was empty.

Leroy Goldsworthy opened the scoring in the first period and, after Cecil Dillon and Charlie Mason had put the New Yorkers on top, George Mantha tied it up again.

Tony Savage bagged a spectacular solo goal in the second which gave the Montrealers the lead until the Cook-Boucher-Cook line combined in the third, Bill Cook scoring. Aurel Joliet won the game for the Canadiens with little more than a minute to play, when he slammed in Wilder Larochelle's rebound.

Joe Lamb, Frank Jerve and Ossie Osmundson figured in all three goals Eagles scored against Wings. They got their first in the opening period through Osmundson after Johnny Sorrell had opened the scoring, tied it up again in the third after Herb Lewis had got Wings' second and then won with their final, quick goal.

LES PATRICK MAKES DENIAL

Manager of New York Rangers Refutes Rumor Club Not Trying to Finish First

New York, March 13.—Remarks dropped here and there that New York Rangers might not be pressing too vigorously for victories in the remaining games of the waning National Hockey League season, drew some cryptic remarks from the blueshirts yesterday as they rested after a gruelling four-game road trip.

It has been suggested by some that Rangers possibly preferred finishing third in the United States section in order to collide with Montreal Canadiens in the opening round of the Stanley Cup playoffs. To finish first would mean clashing with the Toronto Maple Leaf powerhouse, in a five-game tussle for the league title, an assignment Boston Bruins are seeking and probably will earn.

PATRICK SPEAKS

Lester Patrick, Ranger coach, said: "As far as sidestepping Toronto is concerned, that is merely gossip. The Leafs play a wide-open game, and that is the kind of a team we have the best chance against, as we, too, go in for the free-scoring game."

Captain Bill Cook, Frankie Boucher and Davie Kerr were sought out. The possibility that the blueshirts were avoiding first place—providing they were good enough to get there—was treated with considerable laughter by the Ranger spark-plugs.

"And don't forget," chimed in Charlie Mason, the peppery youngster from Saskatoon, "we are a cinch for 500 bucks apiece in a Toronto series—just like money from home—that we would not get in a third-place playoff and in which we might get knocked out in the bargain."

FREE-FOR-ALL IN ICE CLASH

London and Cleveland Players in Merry Battle; Play-offs Open Next Week

London, Ont., March 13.—London Tecumsehs still shared the top rung rung in the International Hockey League with Detroit Olympics to-day and Cleveland Falcons were in a three-cornered deadlock with Buffalo and Syracuse for third position.

A desperate set-to yesterday evening between Falcons and Tecs here concluded with a 2 to 2 tie after seventy minutes of play, which saw a free-for-all in the opening stanza.

Even the goal-tenders and subs got into the battle royal, which started when Dick Benson slashed Eric Pettinger, and the London left winger retaliated with an uppercut. Pettinger drew a major penalty, Benson a minor, and Bill Cunningham emerged from the pile-up with a gash on his face that took three stitches.

Windsor, Ont., March 13.—Next Tuesday evening the International Hockey League play-offs will get under way on the home ice of the teams finishing first and second. The second game will be staged March 21 at the rinks of the third and fourth teams, while a third game if necessary will take place either Saturday, March 23, or Sunday, March 24, depending upon whether Sunday hockey is permitted in the city where it is to be played.

Between now and Sunday, when the regular league schedule comes to a finish, there are seven games to be played and with only two points separating the first five teams, it is a matter of conjecture as to which four clubs will finally attain a place in the post-season series.

Detroit and London are tied for top position with forty points each, while Buffalo, Cleveland and Syracuse are bunched behind them with thirty-eight points apiece.

The final will be played on a three-out-of-five series basis, the dates to be announced as soon as the survivors of the semi-finals are known.

BIG SEVEN OF MAJOR HOCKEY

The big seven scoring leaders of the National Hockey League remained unchanged in their positions to-day. The marksmen picked up four assists and one goal between them, but it failed in any way to change the standing.

The three-way tie for second place between Harvey Jackson, Toronto; Syd Howe, Detroit, and Frank Boucher, Rangers, remained unbroken.

The standings follow:

	G.	A.	Pts.
Conacher, Toronto	22	21	43
H. Jackson, Toronto	22	21	43
Howe, Detroit	20	23	43
Boucher, Rangers	11	32	43
Aurie, Detroit	15	27	42
Chapman, Americans	9	31	40
Lewis, Detroit	16	23	39

Blue Ribbons Are Ready For Varsity

Victoria Champions in Tip-top Shape For British Columbia Basketball Final; Will Meet Students in First Two Games Friday and Saturday

With a light workout called for to-morrow evening at the High School gym, Victoria Blue Ribbons, local hope for the Canadian senior men's basketball championship this season, are fit and trim for their British Columbia play-off series against the University of British Columbia quintette. The finals open at the Varsity gym with games on Friday and Saturday evenings. The series, which is best three out of five games, will be resumed here on March 22 and 23 with a fifth game, if necessary, on March 26.

On Monday evening the tea and coffee representatives went through a grueling workout under the supervision of Chuck Chapman. After the practice every member of the squad was reported to be in first-class condition. The Ribbons will go to Vancouver on Friday afternoon at full strength, with the exception of Johnny Craig.

Porky Andrews, who was forced out of the game for several weeks with an injured back, has completely recovered and will be able to take his regular turn on the forward line. Alex McKeachie, who went into the game with Everett Shadoffs with a twisted neck, has worked out the injury, to regain his former speed and shooting ability. With both Andrews and McKeachie in top form the Ribbons enter the finals with a smooth-working bunch of forwards.

The starting line-up the locals will throw against Varsity will see Chuck Chapman and Doug Peden as guards. Art Chapman will be at centre, flanked by Albert Martin and either McKeachie or Andrews. For relief duty at guard the Ribbons will have Joe Ross while the other forward will be Bill Wallis.

Victorious over the New Westminster Adanacs in the five-game play-off for the mainland championship Varsity have a smooth-clicking outfit. Jumping at centre for the students will be Ralph Henderson. He will have with him on the first string forward line Jimmy Bardsley and A. Willoughby. This is a smooth-functioning trio that packs plenty of scoring punch. The Varsity guards will be Mansfield and Pringle. For substitutes the students will have Dick Wright, Osborne, Swan and Ross.

The series promises to be a great struggle with the Ribbons slight favorites to cop first money.

Monarchs Beaten By English Team

London, March 13. — England evened the international hockey series with Canada by defeating Winnipeg Monarchs 1 to 0 yesterday evening. Both sides now have won two games.

Rugby Exhibition Is Suggested Here

The Victoria Rugby Union, at its meeting yesterday evening, made tentative plans for an exhibition fixture between the Wanderers' Blues, intermediate city champions, and Victoria College, runners-up, for March 23 at Macdonald Park.

Should the game be played, gate receipts would be turned over to St. Joseph's Hospital, which has been looking after injured players.

The meeting also approved Vancouver's announced willingness to reduce the size of the British Columbia union and left to the local delegates the right to vote as they saw fit on details of the question.

Title Skating Meet At Saskatoon Soon

Saskatoon, March 13.—For the first time in history, Saskatoon will be the scene of the western Canada indoor speed skating championships next week. The meet, which is sanctioned by the A.A.U. of Canada, will be staged at the exhibition stadium here Tuesday, March 19.

Kimberley Scores Two-goal Victory

British Columbia Senior Hockey Champs Trounce Edmonton Superiors 3 to 1 in First Game of Alberta-B.C. Allan Cup Play-offs; Eastern Fixtures

Calgary, March 13.—Kimberley Dynamiters proved the better "mudders" here yesterday evening on a sheet of ice that was covered with water and, playing most of their men up all the way, handed Edmonton Superiors a 3 to 1 defeat in the first game of the Alberta-British Columbia Allan Cup playdowns.

Through the first period play was fairly even, but in the second and third, the Edmonton team, tired from winning the Alberta title Monday night, were all but penned behind their own blue-line. In the second period goalie "Swede" Hornquist, Kimberley, had only three or four shots to handle, to about fourteen or twenty for Don Stuart in the Superior cage.

From the opening seconds, when he scampered around the Edmonton defence to pick up his own pass, Ralph Redding, formerly of Regina, was the standout player of the Dynamiter squad. He was right in on Stuart for rebounds, and always was dangerous around the Edmonton nets.

Scoring the first goal after only eleven seconds of play, Redding put his team ahead again in the second. Joe Brown scored Superiors' only goal halfway through the first period.

Hugo Mackie took the puck across the blue line and fell as he shot at the goal. Redding grabbed the puck before it reached Stuart and batted it into the net.

Play was barely under way in the third before Mackie scored his team's third goal. Bill Watt of the Edmonton defence tried to clear the puck up the ice from a corner, but Mackie stopped it halfway to the blue line. Turning about quickly, he backhanded a shot toward the Edmonton goal. A few feet short of Stuart the puck took a bounce and hopped over the goalie's leg into the net.

On the soft ice the players found combination play almost impossible. From the first gong it was just a question of which team could bat the puck farther. In fact the ice was so soft even the referees at times had trouble skating.

The only penalty of the game went to Clarence Reddick, Kimberley, in the first period. He laid Joe Brown out with a butt end jab.

Edmonton threw five forwards on the ice in the closing minutes of the game. Mackie trapped them all in Kimberley territory and raced in on Stuart, only to have the Edmonton goalie take his shot and clear.

About 4,000 fans, the largest hockey crowd this year, saw the game.

Lineups follow:

SUMMARY

First period—1, Kimberley, Redding, 0.11; 2, Edmonton, J. Brown, 12.58. Penalty: Reddick.

Second period—3, Kimberley, Redding (H. Mackie), 5.30.

Third period—4, Kimberley, H. Mackie, 0.26.

The Montreal Senior League finals went into a fifth stanza when Ottawa Senators defeated Montreal Royals, 6 to 4, yesterday evening in the fourth game. It was Ottawa's first win in the best-of-five series. Royals can finish it all with a victory Friday night.

The Maritime playdowns moved a step nearer the final when Kentville Wildcats, Senior B champions of Nova Scotia, played a 3 to 3 tie with Edmunston Eskimos, intermediate champions of New Brunswick and Prince Edward Island.

The winner of this series, which concludes Thursday night, will play Halifax Wolverines for the right to represent the Maritimes in the Allan Cup race.

Juniors made headway yesterday evening, too. Winnipeg Monarchs won the Manitoba title and Oshawa majors qualified to play Kitchener-Waterloo Greenshirts for the Ontario Hockey Association championship.

Monarchs administered a 12 to 2 trouncing to the Huskies from The Pas and the northern team decided when it was over that they would not bother the Monarchs about the balance of what was to have been a three-game series. The Monarchs will start their Memorial Cup trek Saturday night against Port Arthur.

Oshawa scored a 3 to 1 win over Toronto Young Rangers in the third game of their grim series. They were tied at 7 to 7 after two games.

M.C.C. ELEVEN PLAYS TO DRAW

Kingston, Jamaica, March 13.—The second and final colonial cricket match between the touring Marylebone Cricket Club and a Jamaica eleven was drawn yesterday when Jamaica did not declare its first innings until ten-time. Scores for the three-day match were: M.C.C. 321 and 100 for three; Jamaica, 452 for six declared.

YANKS LOOK FORMIDABLE

Even Without Ruth Club Will Be Hard to Stop in American League Campaign

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Writer

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 13.—The New York Yankees, without Babe Ruth, look strange and a bit lonesome, for all the briskness they are generating for the coming American Baseball League pennant chase.

The separation of the "inseparables" no doubt was inevitable, under the circumstances, yet they can't quite forget the old "Bam" whether his presence this year would have any difference in the team's championship prospects.

"Frankly and fairly," Manager Joe McCarthy says, "we will miss Ruth a great deal, and I wish him the best of luck with the Braves. You can't replace ball pleayers like the big fellow. I doubt if we ever see his equal again."

YOUNG PLAYERS

It has taken the passing of Ruth to emphasize that the Yankees again are mainly a team of ambitious youngsters, with reputations to make and perhaps to win. Tony Lazzeri, Earl Combs and Lou Gehrig are the only survivors of earlier pennant days.

It is now in the main McCarthy's club. Blazing Ben Chapman, an infielder when McCarthy took charge, has been converted into one of the game's best centre fielders and now threatens also to become a turn-around hitter.

Frankie Crosetti at short and now Robert (Red) Rolfe, have been developed to share the infield assignments with Lazzeri and Gehrig. George Selkirk has shown so much ability that he will take over the Babe's old post in right field.

There won't be any question about the Yankees being 1-2 in the pennant race if McCarthy can find the answer to his pitching problems as quickly as he has settled other player issues. Bill Dickey, sound of health again, eliminated any concern about the back stopping.

The pitching staff, headed by the great Vernon (Lefty) Gomez, figures to be one of the best in the league, despite some uncertainties. Gomes and Red Ruffing won forty-five ball games last year. No more could have been asked of them and if they can repeat, the Yankees will be hard for the Tigers or any other club to stop.

Rangers Will Meet Hearts

Glasgow, March 13.—Semi-finals for the Scottish Soccer Cup will see Glasgow Rangers, the cup-holders, opposed by Hearts at Hampden Park while Aberdeen and Hamilton Academicals clash at Celtic Park.

The draw for the semi-finals, to be played March 30, was made to-day.

Intermediate Rugby Title Question Aired

Possibility of Blues Playing For Province Cup, Symbolic of Provincial Championship, to Be Studied

Interest to-day swung again to the forgotten men of Victoria's rugby—the young intermediates whose standard of play was reported to be of a higher type than that played in the senior league this season.

Victoria College will go across the gulf for an exhibition game against the U.B.C. 160-pound team preceding the Vancouver-Victoria McKechnie Cup fixture on Saturday.

But whether or not the Oak Bay Wanderers Blues, winners of the city intermediate championship, would be given a chance to challenge for the Province Cup, formerly up for the intermediate provincial championship, is unknown.

Once again the difficulty revolves around finances. Word from rugby union officials to-day indicated the All - Blacks - Gunners championship game last Saturday was played at a loss. The union feels an obligation to St. Joseph's Hospital for the care of its injured players, and all the money in the union is tied up in a trust fund.

In certain quarters it was felt the union should put up at least some of the money required to send the Blues across to Vancouver or bring the Vancouver intermediate champions to the city for a final.

Further difficulty was encountered in view of the fact the Vancouver second division is reported to be operating under the same arrangement Victoria's second division did last year, placing no weight restriction on their men.

While the obstacles in the way of such a series were fully realized, it was felt every effort should be made to give the Blues a chance to seek the cup if it were at all possible.

RACE MEETING GETS STARTED

Bang-tails Open Spring Session at Bay Meadows; Carisbrooke Wins

San Mateo, Calif., March 12.—A driving finish which saw the four leaders separated by noses featured the $1,500 added inaugural handicap yesterday, as the double entry of the Mr. and Mrs. P. M. Pike Stables — Carisbrooke and Indiantown — finished first and second in the main event of the spring season opening here. The distance was six furlongs.

Nearly 10,000 fans, the first gathering under the new "no pass" rule, cheered home the winners. Semaphore, owned by Mrs. C. Phillips, finished third, and Bluebeard, the early leader, fourth.

Carisbrooke paid $5.20 to win, $4.60 to place and $2.80 to show. Indiantown was worth $4.60 and $2.80, while Semaphore came in for $3.

FAVORITES RULE

Favorites came in most of the day, though Masked Prince, under Jockey Smith, sprung a big surprise in the third event, when he galloped under the wire in a six-furlong event to pay $59.20, $18 and $10. The favorite, Jeannette K., was fourth.

Telegraph betting, inaugurated yesterday by a commercial company (Western Union) in co-operation with Bay Meadows, brought in over $5,000, mostly in bets from $2 to $10 from points within the state. The biggest "outside" gamble of the day, $600 from a Los Angeles fan, was successful, Ima Dear winning the three and one-half furlongs, first race, to pay $2.60. Vernon Pucksters Concede Play-off

The second game, which had been carded for to-night, has been canceled and the teams have left for home.

WITH THE REGULARS AND ROOKIES IN BALL CAMPS

By ALAN GOULD
Associated Press Sports Editor

St. Petersburg, Fla., March 13.—Touching the training camp base.

The world champion St. Louis Cardinals will start the campaign with a new centrefielder but it won't be John Leonard (Pepper) Martin. The newcomer is Terry Moore, a ball hawk from the Columbus "farm" and labelled a sure thing to make good in the big show. Miguel Gonsales, the taciturn Cuban who serves Frank Frisch as first lieutenant, rates Moore one of the fastest and best flycatchers he has ever coached. Terry is a printer by trade.

Martin, with the kinks extracted from the trick left elbow that gave him so much trouble the last two years and contributed to his fielding lapses in the 1934 world series, is a fixture at third base for the champions. Pepper likes the hot corner and is rarin' to go. He's the most popular player on the Cardinal roster.

DEAN BROTHERS

Baseball sharps expect both Dean brothers to win twenty or more games this year but many of them now are insisting that Paul eventually will prove a more consistent winner than the more colorful Dizzy. Last season Paul had a bad start, later twisting an ankle and being out of action for over two weeks, yet he finished with nineteen victories.

Frisch says Ruth will always be dangerous at the plate but that the strain of playing left field in six out of eight National League parks to avoid the sun, will be tough on the Babe's shaky legs.

George Selkirk the lanky Canadian is definitely slated to take Ruth's old place in right field for the Yankees but that doesn't entirely solve Joe McCarthy's outfield problem.

Ben Chapman is the only other fixture, with a quartette of contenders including Earle Combs, for the third spot in the Yankee pastures. Secretly the Yankee pitchers are glad Ruth won't be chasing flyballs this year. One of the factors that helped the Cardinals in their great dash to the 1934 pennant was a clubhouse scrap between Joe Medwick, the belting outfielder and Rip Collins, slugging first baseman. Rip accused Joe of playing a fly ball carelessly and the fur flew. Thereafter Medwick played his best ball of the season and the Cardinals went on the warpath against the opposition under the consistent driving of Manager Frisch.

Avalon, Cal.—In nominating comeback candidates, the Chicago Cubs offer Charley Root.

Root, one of the Cubs' most dependable hurlers over a six-year stretch starting with 1929, went almost into obscurity last season when he won four games and lost seven.

This year he reported in exceptional condition and has looked so good that manager Charlie Grimm has hopes the husky righthander will stage a comeback.

Pasadena, Cal.—Any of the Chicago White Sox pitchers who fail to make the grade this season will not do so for lack of opportunity.

Manager Jimmy Dykes plans to keep at least eleven of his fifteen candidates until May 15. Those regarded as certainties to stick are: George Earnshaw, Sam Jones, Lee Tietje, Ted Lyons, Whitlow Wyatt, Lee Stine, Vernon Kennedy and John Whitehead.

Orlando, Fla.—Even at this early stage of the proceedings, Brooklyn Dodgers have decided Frank Lamanske will do.

The left-handed strikeout king of the Western League has been overpowering the batters in practice and seems almost certain to stick.

Miami Beach, Fla.—Not the least interesting of baseball comebacks this spring is that which Larry Benton, thirty-eight-year-old righthander, is attempting with the New York Giants. Benton has pitched six innings of scoreless exhibiton ball so far, allowing only four hits.

Lakeland, Fla. — Clyde Hatter, the Kentucky southpaw, apparently is sure of a regular berth with Detroit Tigers on the strength of his showing in a seven-inning game Tuesday. Hatter pitched four innings for the regular Tiger team against a yannigan nine. He held them to two hits. The regulars won 2 to 0.

St. Petersburg, Fla.—Babe Ruth is indignant over the injured arm reports that are going the rounds at the Braves' training camp.

"Good grief," the Babe complains, "every time I stub my toe nowadays some wise guy sends out a report that I'm hurt."

Ruth won't be in the practice game to-day but he grins at the idea he's laid up.

Plan Good Track Season Locally

Several Smart Meets Listed Throughout Province; Y Athletes to Start Outdoor Work in April

A season of careful competition, which will keep his men up to the peak but will not wear them out before 1936, the Olympic year, was planned to-day by Archie McKinnon, Flying Y track coach for 1935.

Having carried on a series of track talks weekly at the Y.M.C.A., he has his boys fairly well coached on the technique of their various events, and will leave his outdoor training until the beginning of next month.

At the beginning of April, providing the weather is good, he hopes to start a series of Saturday afternoon workouts which will carry him through that month before more intensive training is started in May.

To open the season officially, he hopes to send some of his performers into the senior, junior and juvenile road races staged by the Britannia Branch, Canadian Legion, B.E.S.L., on April 19. The seniors will cover the eight-mile route, the juniors about five miles and the juveniles approximately two.

INDOOR MEET

One of the features of the year drawing the attention of the club is the proposed indoor meet scheduled for New Westminster in the near future. The officials are constructing a new track in the Royal City, and have already invited Joe Addison to compete. Some of the other local stars, including Bill Dale and Jim Cousins may be given bids to the event.

On May 24 a small team of leading local athletes may take in the proposed Kelowna invitational event. Last year Chuck Cunningham and Joe Addison went to the interior to cop four of the feature contests. On their showing last year, Victoria may be invited to send up a squad of four this season.

OTHER MEETS

A small team may also be sent to the proposed invitational meet at Powell River, tentatively set for July 1, while the usual sizeable squad may go to the Junior Olympics, which will probably be held in Penticton this year.

Development of the local police athletes to a high standard of performance is being considered here this year with Joe Addison regarded as the leader of a fair contingent for the Police Sports at Brockton Point fairly early in the season.

With its new executive, headed by Warren Martin, the Y Track and Field Club is expected to stage a particularly active season. Among the local features will probably be regular handicap meets under the direction of John Baxter.

While the boys will not be out to kill themselves in quest of victories this year, they should have a very fair season.

French Against New Tennis Plan

Paris, March 13.—The executive committee of the French Tennis Federation yesterday voted to oppose the proposal which would permit amateurs to participate in tennis films and which will be presented at the meeting of the International Federation of Czechoslovakia.

ICE SKATING CLASSIC ON

New York, March 13.—With the big Eighth Avenue arena transformed in a magic palace of ice and glittering fantasy, the leading skaters of Europe, Canada and the United States will swing through their exhibitions of grace and skill to-night in the sixth annual international ice skating carnival at Madison Square Garden.

For nearly a week the "standing room only" has been hanging by the reservation window, indicating that 16,000 spectators will jam the Garden. The demand for tickets has been so great that the skating club of New York, which is staging the event for the benefit of the Bellevue Hospital social and relief service, has arranged for a return engagement March 27.

For the first time since the inauguration of the event, the queen of all figure skaters, Sonja Henie, will not be present. Five other leading skaters of the continent are here, however, together with Maritsel Vinson, Boston, and Robin Lee, Minneapolis, the United States champions.

Van Kempen and O'Brien On Top

Los Angeles, March 13.—Henry O'Brien, San Jose, and Piet Van Kempen, Holland, were leading as the six-day bicycle race entered its ninety-sixth hour yesterday evening.

Jimmy Walthour Jr., and Charles Winter, both of New York, engaged in a fist fight after the 8.30 p.m. sprints, each accusing the other of unfair tactics. Each was fined $10 by the referee.

The standings after ninety-six hours follow:

Wall Street List Shows Improvement After Early Slump

Associated Press

New York, March 13.—A limping recovery developed in the stock market to-day, after scattered selling had uncovered several weak spots. Small net gains predominated in leading issues at the finish, although some stocks were still down a point or more.

Sales approximated 1,000,000 shares.

News that domestic copper sales the past day or two had been the highest in months failed to help red metal shares appreciably. Despite a further drop in steel ingot production, trade circles doubted that consumption had yet turned down.

American Can pushed up 2 points, and Bethlehem Steel, Sears, Deere, Case, Chrysler, Loews, McIntyre and a few others around a point. American Telephone, Goodyear and United Fruit lost about 1. Despite heaviness of rail bonds, rail shares rallied, Santa Fe getting up more than a point.

MINES MIXED AT TORONTO

Canadian Press

Toronto, March 13.—Toronto mining issues opened up fairly steady to-day but developed much irregularity later. The market was highly selective.

In the oils Ajax gained 20 cents at 108 on heavy trading, falling off to 1.00 at the close. Acme and Olga Gas and Oil were also heavily traded.

In the cheaper golds Chibougamau, Wayside and McWatters showed good gains. McWatters was up 17 at 1.92. Little Long Lac gained 20 cents at 6.20. Pickel Crow succumbed to profit-taking which took the price off to 266.

Irregularity in the senior golds resulted in losses ranging up to 50 cents in Dome. Wright-Hargreaves and Hollinger against a five-cent gain by Teck-Hughes. Silvers showed Eldorado up 5 and losses for like amounts in Nipissing and O'Brien.

INDUSTRIALS TREND MIXED

Canadian Press

Toronto, March 13.—Toronto Stock Exchange industrials had alternate waves of strength and weakness to-day that left the trend as undecided as the previous day.

Nickel was the most active with a price range held to ¼ point all day. Ford moved up ⅜ to 26⅜. C.P.R. and Brazilian closed unchanged.

Heavy action in Westons knocked the stock off a couple of points to 33 before the selling dried up and the price became stabilized.

B.A. Oil's annual meeting injected some activity into the stock but the price held around opening levels. Pete was ¼ point higher at 28¾ and Supertest a point at 23.

Walkers gained ½ at 26½. Heavy industrials had a point decline in Page Hersey against ½ point gains in Steel of Canada stock.

SELLING IN RAIL BONDS

Associated Press

New York, March 13.—Selling of rail loans continued to be unsettling influence in the bond market to-day. Forenoon trading in U.S. Governments was limited. Persistent weakness of carrier issues continued to be associated with the slow recovery in transportation earning power. The foreign section was mixed.

Chicago, March 13 (Associated Press).—Despite an abrupt weakening of the rye market, grain prices taken as a whole ruled higher to-day.

Prevalent belief that liberal arrivals of foreign rye would continue in the United States had much to do with weakness of the rye market. Other grain markets than rye were strengthened by reports that Argentine corn offerings were dearer, with offerings extremely light.

Wheat closed firm, ¼ to 1 cent higher, May 93⅝ to 93⅞; corn ⅜ to ⅝ up, May 79⅞ to 80; rye ⅜ to ⅝ down; oats at ⅛ decline to ⅜ advance, and provisions showing 10 to 20 cents setback.

COMPANY HAS FINE RECORD

Investors' Syndicate Has Unbroken Record of Consistent Growth

C. N. COMPTON

The forty-first annual statement of condition of Investors Syndicate, released as of December 31, 1934, indicates that the company made the greatest yearly progress in its entire history during the past twelve months.

At the year end, total resources amounted to $61,906,167.22, as compared to $54,514,850.26 at the close of 1933. Included in this amount are capital, surplus and reserves of $6,947,653.46.

The 1934 statement shows a substantial strengthening of the company's liquid position. Cash, high-grade bonds and marketable securities were increased from $13,517,506.45 at the close of 1933 to $24,206,775.32 as of December 31, 1934. It is interesting to note that due to the care and selection of these securities the market price as of December 31, 1934, aggregated $24,129,717.31.

During its entire history, year in and year out, Investors Syndicate has maintained an unbroken record of progress, regardless of good times or bad.

CONSERVATIVE POLICY

The company's record during the past five depression years proves the soundness of its plan of operations and the conservative policy of its management. During this five-year period, marking one of the severest depressions in history, the company has increased its resources from $52,206,550.73 to $61,906,167.22, and during the same period has paid out in cash to its certificate holders more than $60,000,000.

Some of this money went towards the college education of young men and women preparing themselves for life's battles. Some aided in the purchase of homes or helped to free them from debt. To some it gave protection to their businesses during a period of stress. To others it meant comfortable and care-free old age.

In all, this vast sum proved a bulwark of living protection between these people and the mergencies which arose.

C. N. Compton, provincial manager for British Columbia of the Investors Syndicate Limited in Canada, states that progress here has kept pace with the above record.

"Operations in Canada commenced nearly nine years ago. Requirements necessitate that all receipts are reinvested in Canadian securities and such investments to-day total 61.9 per cent more than total liabilities in Canada," states Mr. Compton.

"As an indication of improved business in British Columbia to date this year is 300 per cent over the same period last year. This would appear also to show that the public are turning to the more conservative and sound type of investment to-day, as a result of the experience of the past few years."

Return Of Tarzan

Tarzan, saved from the sea, heard the echoes of his fierce call of triumph die through the dense jungle. For a moment silence reigned. Then, low and weird, came an answering challenge. It was the deep roar of Numa, the lion. And from a great distance, faintly, the fearsome bellow of a bull ape.

Quenching his thirst at the brook, he approached the cabin, raised the lock and entered. Nothing had been disturbed since he left it nearly two years before. One of his grass ropes hung on the wall. Slinging it over his shoulder, Tarzan went out, once more a savage beast hunting his food.

Soon he took to a giant tree. With the first dizzy swing aloft, all the old joy of living swept over him. Above a drinking pool he snared a wild boar, gorging himself on the uncooked meat. Now he went in search of different quarry. He wanted weapons. Four days he journeyed, watching for —MAN.

Night he slept wedged into the crotch of some tree. Noting the flesh of Bara, the wild deer, his nostrils caught the scent of some human, a long way off. The ape-man thrilled with pleasure. Swiftly he moved through the trees, up wind, and came upon a lone warrior treading softly through the jungle beneath.

Where Are Women Who Married To Reform?

Dorothy Dix

Finds Their Mission Was In Vain

HOW LONG has it been since you heard anybody mention "woman's sacred influence" or saw any reference to it in print? Twenty years? Thirty years? So long that you can't remember. Probably the younger generation have never even heard of it at all.

And yet there was a time when every one prated about it and believed in it and it was the favorite theme of novelists and preachers. It was even part of the technique of courtship and a lover pressed his suit by swearing to a girl that he only needed her sacred influence to enable him to lead the higher life or make a fortune.

For those simple, credulous days a woman's sacred influence was held to be a sort of conjure that would work miracles. It had only to be exercised to cure a drunkard's thirst for liquor, or to put energy and pep into a Weary Willie, or to sew up the pockets of a spendthrift, or to turn a surly grouch into a cooing dove. In short, women were held to possess some sort of mysterious and occult power by means of which they could change a man into anything they wished.

Incredibly, women even believed themselves that they were sorceress. Millions of the poor creatures wrecked their lives by marrying men who were damaged goods and trying to cast a spell over them, by their influence, that would metamorphose them into desirable husbands.

Of course, there was never any more foundation in fact for the woman's sacred influence myth than there is for the Santa Claus myth, and doubtless the reason that we never hear of it now is because we have grown up and don't believe in it any more than we do in Santa Claus. We would be just as much amazed to see a man radically changed by a woman's influence as we would be to see Kris Kringle come down the chimney with his whiskers and his pack.

Yet in spite of our skepticism regarding the voltage of woman's influence that makes us rate it as negligible, the thing remains. We are changed in some way by every human contact. Men still fall in love with women. Husbands and wives still live in daily association, their personalities reacting on each other. Men and womenwork together, play together. They are partners and rivals as they have never been before. Women's tastes and caprices are the things men study and cater to in the commercial world. Women's votes and women's opinions on any public question are something politicians regard with awe and misgivings. So woman's influence is still a factor to be reckoned with. But how?

Speaking generally, men's influence over women is a thousandfold greater than women's influence has ever been over men. Women, for instance, have never been able to keep men from philandering, or getting drunk, or doing anything else they wanted to do. But for thousands of years men kept women virtuous and sober because they set that standard of decency for them, although there must have been plenty of girls born with a thirst for liquor and a wandering foot and a love of wild adventure.

Of course, there are exceptions to all rules, and all of us can point out cases where a strong-willed woman has reformed a drunkard, or where a wife has somehow managed to graft her own sturdy backbone into a spineless worm of a man, or where a thrifty and industrious woman has turned her husband into a millionaire.

But for the most part the wife's influence has slid off the husband without leaving any more of a trace than water off a duck's back. The man who could control his appetites controlled them. The weakling gave in to his. The man who was faithful to his wife remained faithful. The petticoat-chaser continued to chase petticoats. The hard worker brought in the bacon. And the ne'er-do-well's wife took in boarders to support him.

And so we are led to this conclusion, that woman's influence cannot change a man, but it can speed him up. It does not change his course, but it sends him faster upgrade and hurtles him swifter into the pit. A man who has a fine and generous character will flower into a nobler manhood if he has a wife who sympathizes with him and helps him develop the good in him, but the best woman in the world can't turn a mean, stingy, cold-hearted man into a philanthropist. A man who is ambitious will succeed the quicker if he has a wife who pushes him up the ladder, but no woman can change a lazy loafer into a go-getter.

And so it goes. And women's answer to men's alibi for failure, that it was their wives who did it, is: We can't make silk purses out of sows' ears. We can only influence you in what you are going to do anyhow.

But it is a pity we have quit talking about women's influence. Women got a whale of a kick out of believing they possessed it and it did men no harm.

Uncle Wiggily's Hop Scotch

By HOWARD R. GARIS

The rain which the March wind had blown over Woodland had washed away the snow from the paths and sidewalks so the stones were clean for the rabbit children to play games on.

One day when Baby Bunty, Jiggle, Jangle and some of the other little rabbits had hopped home from school Baby Bunty called:

"Who wants a game of hop scotch?"

"I do," said Jiggle.

"So do I," said Jangle after her twin sister. "And I'll make the marks on the sidewalk."

"Yes, you can do that very nicely," said Baby Bunty.

With a piece of coal for a pencil Jangle marked the lines, crosses, squares and triangles of a hop scotch game on the sidewalk so nicely cleaned by the rain. After the numbers were put in (and you know how that is done, so there is no need for me to tell you) the rabbit girls got ready to play.

First Baby Bunty tossed the flat stone into one of the spaces. Then, hopping on one hind paw, Bunty began kicking and jiggling the flat stone along to slide it into other spaces as you must do in this game.

DID VERY WELL

Baby Bunty did very well and so did Jiggle and Jangle, for rabbits, being natural hoppers, are the very best animals in all the world to play hop scotch. If you want to learn to be a good hop scotch game player take some lessons from a rabbit.

Well, Bunty, Jiggle and Jangle were having a lot of fun playing the game, but Jingle wasn't doing so well as either Bunty or Jangle. So when it came Jingle's turn again she said:

"I'm going to give it a good kick this time and see if I can't make a better game." So, after she had tossed the flat stone into a space, Jingle hopped along and she gave the stone a most tremendously strong kick so that it flew off the sidewalk, through the air and, as Mr. Twistytail, the fat pig, was coming along the street just then, the stone hit him in the stomach.

"Ugh! Wug!" grunted the pig.

"Oh, I'm so sorry!" cried Jingle. "Did I hurt you, Mr. Twistytail?"

"Not at all, my dear! Not at all!" he laughed. And he picked up the hop scotch stone for Jingle very politely and waddled on. Really Mr. Twistytail had such a fat stomach that I don't believe even if a baseball hit him it would hurt him.

"Don't play so hard, Jingle," said Baby Bunty.

"I won't," said Jingle. Then the game went on merrily until, all of a sudden, along came hopping Uncle Wiggily.

"Oh, Unkie Wig!" called Bunty. "Don't you want to play hop scotch?"

"Of course I do, thank you," said Mr. Longears, laughing. He remembered how he had played when he was a boy rabbit, so he tossed the flat stone and then began to kick it around. But, like Jingle, Uncle Wiggily wanted to make a good game, so he gave the stone a most extraordinary kick. Up off the sidewalk it skimmed, through the air, and as Mrs. Cluck, the hen lady, was coming along just then Uncle Wiggily's stone stopped right into a basket Mrs. Cluck was carrying.

"Kut-kut-kut! Ka-dah-kut!" she cackled, and no wonder. For her basket was filled with eggs and the stone broke a dozen of them so the white and yellow ran down Mrs. Cluck's dress and splattered on the sidewalk.

"Oh, I'm so sorry! I beg your pardon!" cried Uncle Wiggily when he saw what he had done. "My, that's hop scotch for me!" Then he took Mrs. Cluck into his bungalow to wash her dress and he paid for the eggs when you see the pussy cat tickling the white fur on the pussy cat's chin in the kitchen table with her tail I'll tell you about Uncle Wiggily funny moves.

HOROSCOPE

"The stars incline, but do not compel"

THURSDAY, MARCH 14, 1935

Good and evil planetary influences contend to-day, according to astrology. It is a day on which to start cautiously, keeping in well-beaten paths.

There is a forecast of gain and progress for men who wield power over human destiny. Heads in the government and in business are well directed by the stars.

This is an unfavorable planetary government for women who may be unlucky in their business or professional connections. They should strive to excel, for only those of unusual talents and training may hope for high place.

Signs appear to presage need for stern discipline in coming months, when there may be a disinclination among many persons to help themselves in the world of work. Idleness has bred many bad habits, the seers declare.

Prosperity must be built from small centres in which each unit gives its fullest service. Women are to prove their ability as aids in practical ventures.

Through the rule of 1935 Saturn and Neptune in the fixed and labor signs, Pisces and Virgo, give cause for anxiety. Trade unions and other labor organizations may have unexpected difficulties.

Interest in diet will be widespread and the cost of foods will rise for the next few weeks, it is prognosticated. Failure of wheat crops in Europe is prophesied. Canada also may suffer heavy grain losses.

Fires, explosions and earthquakes are foretold for the western coast of the United States. Accidents may be numerous. Ships may encounter storms.

Persons whose birthdate it is have the augury of a year of small obstacles and minor vexations. New friendships will be helpful.

Children born on this day probably will be intense in nature, strong in body and exceedingly ambitious. Subjects of this sign usually have family ties that interfere with their careers.

Thomas H. Benton, statesman, was born on this day, 1782. Others who have celebrated it as a birthday include Henry Sherman Boutell, lawyer and diplomat, 1856, and King Humbert I, former King of Italy, 1844.

ACTOR PLANS B.C. CRUISE

Allen Jenkins, Character Actor of Hollywood, Hopes to Cruise This Summer

Vancouver, March 13.—Enthusiastic over the attractions of British Columbia, Allen Jenkins, well-known Warner Brothers' film comedian and character actor, left by motor for California yesterday, after a brief holiday visit.

Jenkins and his wife expressed their intention of returning this summer for a vacation cruise along the British Columbia coast. During their visit here they inspected a number of yachts and power boats in Coal Harbor, seeking a craft suitable for their project.

It was the first time that Mr. and Mrs. Jenkins had ever visited Vancouver, but even the rain failed to dampen their enthusiasm.

Jenkins has made a name for himself in Hollywood during the last few years, after deserting the legitimate stage. A native of New York City, he was featured in such stage successes as "What Price Glory?" "The Last Mile," and "Rain." On the screen his customary roles are those of owlish-eyed foils for the stars. He is one of the most sought-after character actors on the Warner Brothers' lot.

Liberals Rely On Courts To Guard Provinces' Rights

U.F.A., Bow River; Jean Francois Pouliot, Liberal, Temiscouata, Que., and the old Nationalist leader of Quebec, Henri Bourassa, Independent, Labelle. The division was sought by the government.

AMENDMENTS REJECTED

In a fast-moving climax to the debate, the House turned down, 86 to 65, an amendment moved by James S. Woodsworth, Co-operative Commonwealth Federation Leader, designed to protect workers from absconding or defrauding employers. Conservatives lined up solidly against the Liberals and Progressives.

RULED OUT

E. J. Garland ran into the rules of the House when moving an amendment to exempt from weekly contributions all persons earning less than $1,339 a year. That amount was set by the Labor Department as necessary to maintain health and decency, he explained. It was ruled out of order by Speaker James Bowman when objections were taken by Sir George Perley, acting head of the government, and Hon. R. J. Manion, Minister of Railways.

HIGHLIGHT OF SESSION

The Liberal leader's statement was his first general reply to the government's reform legislation and from a political viewpoint was considered one of the highlights of the session.

He predicted his party's viewpoint would prevail in the long run.

MINISTRY'S ATTITUDE

"This question has been thoroughly discussed," said Sir George Perley. "The position of the government was set forth by the Prime Minister in no uncertain terms." He added he did not propose to follow Mr. King in reopening the constitutional question.

The Woodsworth amendment and the votes followed.

Mr. King read his statement as follows:

"This may be an appropriate moment at which to make a general statement with respect to those measures of social legislation being introduced by the government, which, under judicial interpretation of the distribution of powers between the Dominion Parliament and the provincial legislatures, we believe to be beyond the legislative competence of this Parliament.

"We are now, for the first time, being informed by the government that it has been advised by the law officers of the crown that recent decisions of the Privy Council justify the opinion that the legislation in question is within the competence of the Dominion Parliament; in other words, is intra vires, where formerly it was held to be ultra vires. The Prime Minister has given what, in his opinion, are additional reasons why the legislation should be so considered.

COURT TEST

"We still believe that in a matter of such importance the best method of relieving uncertainty, of avoiding unnecessary disturbance of business, and of determining jurisdiction in accordance with our national tradition, is by taking an advisory opinion from the Supreme Court, or by a constitutional amendment. The government must assume sole responsibility for adopting a more arbitrary and uncertain procedure.

"The Liberal party approves the principle of the social legislation thus far introduced and desires to see it in operation. We refuse to be manoeuvred into a position of opposition to this legislation. We refuse, also, by voting against the legislation, to raise directly an election issue of provincial rights.

PARTY STRATEGY

"The sole responsibility for raising the issue of provincial rights rests on the present administration by its subordination of constitutional propriety, and the long-run objectives of national unity and co-operation, to considerations of party strategy. We believe the attempt of the government to make a controversy over provincial rights a major issue of the coming elections would, if successful, endanger the unity of the Dominion.

COURTS WILL DECIDE

"All legislation is subject to the determination of its validity by the courts. It is certain the validity of the legislation in question will be determined by the courts, and, in the last resort, by the Judicial Committee of the Privy Council. Its validity cannot be determined by this Parliament; neither can it be determined by the result of a general election. Least of all, can legislation that is ultra vires the Dominion Parliament be made intra vires by either the assertion or the assumption of authority on the part of the government.

BY AMENDMENT

"If the Privy Council declares that the jurisdiction in any of the measures submitted rests with the provinces, it can only be transferred to the Dominion by a constitutional amendment. It is for this reason that we believe that the government, some time ago, and certainly before introducing the legislation, should have sought a determination of the question of jurisdiction, and, if such were required, obtained the necessary constitutional amendment. We leave it to the judgment of honorable members of this House whether, in the eventuality of the present legislation being declared by the Privy Council ultra vires of this Parliament, the path of constitutional amendment has been made easier by the arbitrary procedure adopted by the government.

"If Parliament possessed the jurisdiction, we would vote for the measures of social legislation thus far introduced. The position at present, therefore, is that by the conflict between what is now given, as their opinion, by the Minister of Justice and the Prime Minister, and what in previous years was expressed as their opinion, we do not know that Parliament does not possess the jurisdiction, that, as the Prime Minister himself has said, can only be determined by the decision of the Privy Council on the particular legislation. This is the safeguard provided by our constitution against arbitrary appropriation by the Dominion of provincial powers. We propose, therefore, to vote for these measures, subject to this continuing constitutional safeguard, which is implicit in the provisions of our federal constitution, and which cannot, by any form of words, be evaded by the present administration.

NO FALSIFICATION WANTED

"May I add that were we to vote against any of these measures simply because of the belief we entertain on the score of jurisdiction, it would be made to appear that we are opposed to legislation as set forth in the terms of the labor convention and general principles associated with the League of Nations and incorporated in the conditions of peace.

"Whereas, at the National Liberal Convention in 1919, the Liberal Party accepted in their entirety, in the spirit in which they had been framed, and in so far as the special circumstances of the country would permit, the terms of the labor convention and the general principles associated with the League of Nations and incorporated in the conditions of peace.

LIBERAL NEGOTIATIONS

"For us to oppose these measures would also be to adopt a course at direct variance to that which we followed when the Liberal Party was last in office, at which time the Liberal administration had already begun negotiations with the several provinces with a view to the enactment of similar measures.

"An attitude of opposition to these measures might, moreover, suggest that we were not favorable to uniformity of legislation with respect to such matters as unemployment and other forms of social insurance, maximum working hours, minimum wages, 'sweating,' and the like. Whereas, when in office, we sought to effect a national minimum of industrial standards in the only way, short of a constitutional amendment, which it was believed was possible to effect that end, namely, by agreement between the provinces, effected as a result of conference.

ATTITUDE IS PLAIN

"An attitude of opposition might also suggest that we were unfavorable to a constitutional amendment which would permit of the establishment, under federal authority, of a national unemployment insurance scheme, and a national minimum of labor standards. The direct opposite, of course, is the case. We have repeatedly urged that the British North America Act should be so amended as to confer upon this Parliament, subject to essential safeguards, the necessary authority to enact such measures of social legislation as may be in the national interest.

LIBERAL METHOD BEST

"We do not propose to permit the adoption by the government of a method which, for the reasons mentioned, we believe will prove to be ineffective, to place us in a false position as to our aim and desire to achieve, by the only method which we believe to be effective, a purpose upon which all honorable members seemingly are now agreed. That method we shall yet pursue, and that aim we shall yet attain, when the inadequacy of the method now being adopted with respect to social legislation has been made apparent, and is proved to be insufficient to serve the government's professed ends with respect to its measures of social legislation and what we believe to be the government's real purpose in introducing the measures in their present form at the present time."

Striking Crews of Eight Tankers at San Pedro Occupy Transient Camp; Seattle Longshoremen Refuse to Unload Cargoes

San Francisco, March 13.—More than twenty ships were tied up by strikes of Pacific Coast ports to-day as the Sailors' Union walkout from oil tankers spread and longshoremen at Seattle refused to handle cargo from three docks.

Efforts to bring about arbitration of the tanker dispute, in which the Sailors' Union is demanding preferential employment for its members, brought no developments yesterday, both sides reported here.

At San Pedro, the Federal Emergency Relief Administration permitted striking crews of eight tankers tied up there to occupy a transient camp where food and shelter were provided. About 105 seamen were at the camp, it was reported.

Sailors' Union officials declared 1,000 or more tanker workers would be called out as more ships reaching port were deserted along the coast.

The strike was endorsed by the International Seamen's Union here and at Portland, where three ships are crewless thus far. C. E. Carter, agent of the Union, declared any settlement must be coastwide.

A new declaration against working on any vessel where Union sailors had been replaced by non-union crews was issued by the Masters', Mates' and Pilots' Association, and the Marine Engineers' Beneficial Association here and at San Pedro.

Five tankers were reported crewless at San Francisco Bay ports. Tankers were also reported tied up at San Diego and Long Beach.

Seattle, March 13.—Adding to the seriousness of the maritime strike situation here, the crew of the Union Oil tanker La Brea quit the ship shortly after she tied up here from the south yesterday. The Chamber of Commerce warned the Department of Labor at Washington, D.C., that the situation warrants speedy intervention.

The Richfield Oil tanker Kekoskee, deserted, while disputes between operators and seamen are ironed out, also was tied up.

So was the Shepard Line freighter Wind Rush, picketed by Unionists who demanded that her Filipino crew be replaced by Americans. Longshoremen are refusing to touch her cargo. It was predicted a similar greeting will be given the American Oriole of the American Foreign Steamship Corporation due in Everett to-day.

Longshoremen walked out of the Albers, Lilly's and Fisher's Flour Mill docks yesterday, refusing to work the Tacoma-Oriental freighter Olympia, the Pacific Steamship Company's Admiral Nulton and the Gulf-Pacific's Point Palmas unless International Longshoremen's Association members are employed in the mill dock and warehouse. The Olympia returned to the Albers' Mill dock yesterday evening but the longshoremen still refused to touch her.

STOWAWAYS ON SEALING SHIPS

St. John's, Nfld., March 13.—Eight steamers, carrying more than 1,700 men, are sailing along the eastern coast of Newfoundland in earch of the "main patch" which every spring comes down from the north on Arctic ice. This year they are out to beat last season's mark of 227,000 seals, the largest catch in years.

Before sailing from this port the skippers put ashore the annual crop of stowaways, thirty youngsters who had hidden on the vessels over night in the hopes of adventure among the floes.

WAS KNOWN AT COAST PORTS

Late D. Main Was Well-known Fisherman; Played With Glasgow Rangers

Powell River, B.C., March 13.—Daniel Main, known in the fishing industry from Prince Rupert to Victoria, and one-time member of the Glasgow Rangers in the Scottish Football League, died here yesterday after a short illness.

Born in Peter Head, Scotland, forty-five years ago, Main came to Canada in 1902 with his parents, settling in Winnipeg. He played soccer for the Winnipeg Welsh eleven before returning to Scotland shortly before the war.

He enlisted in the Royal Naval Reserve in 1914 and was one of a small group of survivors of a [illegible] mine sweeper.

Returning to Canada after the war Main came to British Columbia, where he entered the fishing industry, first at Prince Rupert and later on the east and west coasts of Vancouver Island.

WENT TO AID BLAIRGOWRIE

When Ss. Ausonia Reached Spot From Where SOS Sent, Ship Disappeared

Halifax, March 6 (By Mail)—Two and one-half days late and reporting a very rough trip, the Cunard White Star liner Ausonia, Captain W. C. Battle, D.S.O., R.D., R.N.R., arrived yesterday afternoon from Southampton and Havre to land seventy-four passengers, 174 bags mail, 135 bags parcel post and 600 tons of cargo. The various days' runs were 124, 292, 308, 173, 267, 229, 341, 345 and 272 miles. On Wednesday the steamer experienced a whole gale, with mountainous seas.

The Ausonia received the wireless message from the Blairgowrie reporting that vessel in distress and messaged the Europa of her condition. The Ausonia was then 240 miles east of the Blairgowrie, and Captain Battle reported it took him thirty-six hours to reach the position the steamer was in when she asked for assistance.

On arrival yesterday the forward decks were covered with ice, also the ship clear to the bridge was ice coated. Despite the fact that the well deck and forward deck had been flooded for days by the heavy seas no damage was sustained.

Passengers landing included Major Hector E. Adkins, head of the noted Kneller Hall band, which toured Canada a year ago. He is now en route to Toronto and Cincinnati to attend band conferences. Others were Alfred T. O'Leary, Halifax; Gérard Boudreau, Petit Rocher, N.B.; George Bennett, joining his brother at R.C.A. barracks, Sackville Street; A. Nordiede, St. John's; A. R. Blake, a film man, Fort Garry, Winnipeg; Hamilton McCrymont, Montreal steamship man. For New York she had J. C. R. Price, financial editor of The Star, London, England, en route to tour American cities.

Local People On World Trip

Vancouver, March 13.—Ss. Wisconsin of the French Line, Capt. A. Greffier, arrived yesterday and berthed at Ballantyne Pier, reporting a splendid voyage.

Suva-Java-Pacific Ms. Manoeran sailed yesterday for South Africa with a good list of passengers and a good cargo. Among the passengers were Mr. and Mrs. Arthur P. Dawe of Victoria with their child and nursemaid, embarking on a six-months' cruise of the world.

The figures for height serve to distinguish high water from low water. Where blanks occur in the tables, the tide rises or falls continuously during three of the usual tidal periods.

The height is in feet and tenths of a foot, measured from the average level of low water.
